'Baby Tornado' Rips Through Shelby Area

WIND UNROOFS SCHOOL WHILE PUPILS STUDY

25 Youngsters Escape Injury, Farmer Hurt When Chimney Bricks Fall on Him.

DAMAGE HITS THOUSANDS

News of Storm's Damage Comes to Light 36 Hours After Gale Had Struck.

Residents of Sharon township, sparsely settled district south of Shelby, surveyed damage of thousands of dollars done by a "baby tornado" that struck Wednesday afternoon but became known only this morning—a good 36 hours later.

The Gamble school building was unroofed, and the lives of 25 pupils in the building at the time were endangered.

More than 20 buildings in the area were struck and damaged.

Albert Gray, 66, a farmer, was knocked unconscious when struck by falling bricks as the tornado struck his home.

First word of the storm reached authorities this morning when insurance adjusters arrived on the scene to estimate losses on property.

None of the persons whose homes and other buildings were damaged reported the tornado to authorities either here or at Shelby.

H. R. Cutnaw is teacher at the Gamble school, but he could not be reached by telephone today. However, Boyd C. Robinson, superintendent of county schools, received his first information of the damage to the building from The News-Journal this morning. He went immediately to the vicinity to ascertain the damage.

Surprised to learn of the school loss today, Robinson said he would go into the area this afternoon to "see what can be done about taking care of the pupils."

Pupils in the one-room Gamble school just south of Shelby escaped injury when the swirling wind tore the roof off the structure, causing damage estimated at $400. The pupils were dismissed until the building is repaired.

SPREAD DRAGNET

Visiting Trigger-Men Sought in Murder-Ring Case.

NEW YORK —(NS)— A widespread dragnet was instituted today for two characters District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn described as out-of-town "trigger men" who came to New York to "liquidate" as many hostile witnesses as possible against the Brooklyn murder syndicate.

O'Dwyer identified the alleged "imported killers" as Isadore Bernstein, a member of the "Purple Gang" of Detroit and Ben "Bugs" Siegel, a leading Los Angeles racketeer.

O'Dwyer attributed at least 16 out-of-town killings to the Brooklyn mob which is already suspected of between 30 and 40 in the New York neighborhood.

One of several witnesses called before the Dies committee in Washington. Thomas O'Dea, president of the Young Communist League of Massachusetts, told of alleged Communist members among students at several leading eastern universities, but refused to name names because he didn't want to jeopardize scholastic or employment records. He admitted there were Reds at Harvard, Dartmouth, Boston university, Amherst and Massachusetts Institute of Tecnology.

HULL SEEKING ARBITRATION

Plan to Settle Oil Dispute With Mexico Outlined in State Note.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Hull said today the United States had proposed arbitration to Mexico to settle the two-year old dispute over Mexico's expropriation of American oil properties.

Hull said a note had been delivered by the state department to the Mexican ambassador, Castillo Najera, to this effect.

Beyond saying that the note suggested arbitration, Hull said he could not go into any details connected with it.

The state department head said he could not say whether any observations had been received from Mexico on the subject.

It is understood that the arbitration proposed was under the aegis of the 1929 inter-American treaty of conciliation and arbitration.

The United States proposed the same method in 1938 to Mexico to settle the controversy over the expropriation of American agrarian properties. Mexican replied then by suggesting instead that a joint commission evaluate the claims and fix the compensation. The state department agreed to this.

The oil controversy has been carried on since March 1938, when the expropriation decree was put into effect. The two large American oil groups interested in Mexico, the Standard Oil of New Jersey and the Sinclair, carried on direct negotiations with the Mexican government which thus far have been unsuccessful.

UNEASY PALL OF INACTION SHROUDS WAR

Joint Allied Parliament Is Discussed as Link in Partnership.

FRENCH FIGHT REDS

Nazis Fail to Get Guard From Yugoslavia for German Merchantmen.

(By Associated Press)

An uneasy pall of apparent inaction hung over Europe's war today.

The French and Germans reported the usual patrol skirmishes on the western front, the Germans saying about 15 French were killed, while the French mentioned four artillery casualties.

On the diplomatic front the quiet was more notable.

There was talk in London of a possible joint British and French parliament aimed at forming an empire partnership so strong that "no aggressor would dare challenge it."

Britain readied her newest economic weapon against Germany—the English Commercial Corporation, Ltd., to sell British products in southeastern Europe and to buy up goods which Germany might otherwise get—while the House of Commons looked forward to a secret debate next Thursday on blockade methods.

Denied Guard.

Germany was reported to have failed in an attempt to get Yugoslavia to guard German merchant ships carrying Yugoslavia bauxite through the Adriatic. The ore, from which aluminum is obtained, is not regarded by Yugoslavia as a war material, and official sources previously had said she would sanction its shipment through territorial waters.

The French were reported preoccupied with their campaign against Communism. The government was understood to be considering a decree to make dissemination of Communist

LINER SAILS

Mauretania Believed En Route for Troop Ship Service.

HONOLULU—(UP)—The British luxury liner Mauretania sails today, her presence here tending to confirm reports that she is en route to Australia to serve as a troop ship.

Only a few officers came ashore from the 35,739 ton vessel, painted an inconspicuous gray. Her pier was closed to all except those who had business. Police patrolled the top pier and coast guard cutters watched the ship from the ocean approach.

The Mauretania had sailed halfway around the world since March 20, when she left New York. She passed through the Panama Canal into the Pacific ocean March 26.

She arrived yesterday afternoon and immediately began refueling, a task which was completed last night.

ASK LABOR INQUIRY

AKRON —(NS)— The National Small Business Men's association today asked Attorney General Robert Jackson to investigate alleged illegal use of public funds by members of the national labor relations board, according to Judge J. Raymond Tiffany, chief counsel for the association.

Deadline Passes, 50 Candidates In County Stay for Primaries

While two candidates for the Democratic and Republican nominations for governor withdrew from the primary contests before the withdrawal deadline last night, all of the candidates for Richland county offices were still in the race today.

A. F. Porter, election board clerk, said the deadline passed without a withdrawal. Fifty candidates filed for 10 county offices.

Only withdrawals of state-wide interest yesterday were Addison Q. Thacher of Toledo, who filed against Gov. John W. Bricker on the Republican ticket, and James R. Marker, Versailles, one of the eight Democrats seeking the Democratic nomination. Gov. Bricker now has no opposition for the G. O. P. nomination for governor.

The Richland county board of elections was scheduled to meet late this afternoon to let contracts for printing 44,350 ballots for the May 14 primary. The board will order 22,350 Democratic ballots and 22,000 Republican ballots, Porter said.

Estimates of the number of ballots that will be needed are based on the vote in previous primary elections in the county.

Ashland School Fired as Frat Hazes Two Pledges

Akron U. Students Left Stranded on Highway, Seek Refuge In Building Later Hit By Flames.

ASHLAND—A fraternity hazing gave two Akron university students a close brush with the law today to say nothing of an escape from death or serious injury in a burning school house.

Left stranded on a highway to find their own way back to Akron by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity members who drove them in an automobile to a point five miles north of Ashland, the pledges, Albert Trumpikas, 20, and Lawrence Thompson, 18, sought refuge from the chilly 4 a. m. air today in an abandoned school house.

Sighting an abandoned school after being left at the junction of routes 89 and 42, the pledges gained entrance through an open door, built a fire in an improvised fireplace, and spent the rest of the night there.

Little did they realize while they were dozing away that their shelter was doomed to catch fire from the burning embers from the fire place.

With luck evidently riding with them, they awakened safe but only a few minutes after leaving, they saw the building go up in flames.

They saw the blaze while going to a nearby farm house of Ross Emmonds where they sought food, and to contact friends in Akron.

Running back to the school with Emmonds to put out the blaze, they found the fire had gained too much headway and was impossible to put out. The interior of the brick building was gutted by the flames.

The youths were taken into custody and appeared before Prosecuting Attorney A. Ross Siverling, this morning where they told their story, but were released at about noon after questioning.

The school house was the property of Maude Grady and had not been used since last year when it was abandoned in favor of a centralized school.

WINNIPEG, Man.—(UP)—R. A. Coppen, for the first time in his life, won some money on a horse race today.

Coppen had a ticket on Bogskar, winner of the Grand National at Aintree, Eng., and stands to collect some $36,300. The ticket would have been worth $66,000 to him if he hadn't sold a half interest to Sidney Freeman of New York for $3,000.

2 TRUCKS UPSET

Two Injured in Mishaps Near Bellville and Ontario.

Two young Akron men suffered minor injuries in one of two truck accidents near Mansfield last night, according to reports of highway patrolmen.

Joseph E. Falcone, 25, and Paul Baker, 21, of Akron, were treated by a Bellville physician for injuries received when the truck in which they were riding turned over on its side at 9 p. m. Thursday after striking a guard rail on route 13 while rounding a curve north of Bellville.

In the other accident Herbert E. Blazer, 30, of Canton, escaped injuries, when the tractor and trailer he was driving turned over on its side at 10:50 p. m. Thursday on temporary route 30-N, one mile north of Ontario. The truck struck a rut in the road, the driver said.

GUARDED SECRET

Even President's Mother Doesn't Know Plans.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. —(AP)— President Roosevelt's decision on whether he will seek a third term must be a well-guarded secret for not even his mother knows the answer.

The president's 85 year-old mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, said at a press conference yesterday her son had never said anything to her about running for a third term. She added:

"I think he probably knows more than most people who would run for president."

FLOOD ZONE WORRIED BY RIVER RISE

Susquehanna Passes Flood Stage, Heads Toward New Crest.

FIGHT DISEASE MENACE

Thousands Fear Further Havoc From Rising Streams in Pennsylvania.

(By International News Service)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Anxiety grew in the Wyoming valley flood zone today as the rain-gorged Susquehanna passed flood stage for the second time since Monday and headed toward a new crest.

Upsetting predictions that it would rise no higher than 25 feet, the swollen stream showed a height of 25.14 at Wilkes-Barre's Market street bridge at 7 a. m. and gave no sign of receding. The flood crest last Monday was 31.6.

Health authorities at the same time moved swiftly to halt an incipent outbreak of disease on the heels of discovery of a suspected case of spinal meiningitis among flood refugees.

Rising streams in northern Pennsylvania and southern New York, coupled with light rainfall during the night, brought fear to thousands that further flood havoc was to be visited on them.

Estimate Revised.

Richard Bately, state flood control engineer who had predicted a 25-foot crest, revised his estimate to 27½ feet on the basis of information received after the storms.

Water was returning to the lowlands adjacent to Wilkes-Barre, and Breslau and Lynwood, in Hanover township, were reported covered again. Water was pouring over the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Buttonwood.

The Susquehanna was reported to be higher in the vicinity of Binghamton, N. Y., but not to have reached previous levels. The rise delayed the return of fugitives to their homes and held up repairs.

Dike Repaired.

W. P. A. workers toiled through the night, repairing the break in the dike at Kingston to prevent further flooding of that area.

Valley residents were nervous despite repeated asurances from authorities that new losses are not anticipated. The tension increased as a result of false reports circulated that dams were breaking.

The Red Cross arranged to provide more food and shelter for refugees who have been advised not to return to their homes.

Majority of the estimated 30,000 persons who fled the high waters were moved back into their homes and were engaged in cleaning up.

Police Check on Child's Amazing Slaying Story

Discrepancies Indicate She Wielded Hammer That Killed Mother and Her Brother and Sisters; She Admits Beating Parent.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES—Early solution of the brutal hammer slaying of a mother and her three small children is anticipated, authorities said today, as they held Chloe Davis, sole 11-year-old survivor of the death drama on a suspicion of murder booking.

From amazing, discrepant versions told them by the cool, slang-talking child, Police Captain Edgar Edwards said clues indicated she bludgeoned her mother, Mrs. Lolita Bjorkman Davis, 36, to death with a claw hammer after fatally beating her sisters, Daphne, 10, and Deborah Ann, 7, and her brother, Marquis, 3.

The husband and father, summoned home after the tragedy from a grocery store where he clerks, aided authorities in their questioning of Chloe who, despite several divergent stories, still blamed her mother for the crime.

Dr. Paul De River, police psychiatrist, after questioning Chloe, a sixth-grade student he described as above average intelligence, said he considered her "the cruelest-blooded, coolest individual I ever met."

The girl was described by one police matron as having "a face like an angel's."

"Chloe is a precocious youngster. She acts like a girl of 15 or 16 years of age. She is a child of a great deal of imagination and is well read.

"As to her guilt or innocence, I cannot say. She told me she was sure she had not committed the murders," said Dr. River.

After being questioned for awhile, Chloe sat down with Captain Edwards and ate a hearty steak dinner. When he refused to order her a bottle of beer, she snapped:

"Mother and I split a bottle a couple of days ago."

Blames Deaths On Mother.

Captain Edwards said the 80-pound fair-haired, blue-eyed Chloe first told him calmly and with no sign of tears that her mother, of medium height and build, killed the three children with the hammer, saying that "demons" were after her.

Then, at the request of her mother, Chloe said she took the weapon and "conked" her about 50 times on the head and body until the head broke off the handle of the hammer, then beat her with the handle "until she stopped breathing."

Repeated questioning of the girl and subsequent development of the

FINAL VOTE ON TRADE BILL DUE

Passage of Reciprocal Trade Program for Three Years Expected in Senate.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)— President Roosevelt said today he believed it would be very harmful to the nation if the bill to extend the reciprocal trade treaty act were limited to one year.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration senate leaders hoped for a final vote today on the bill extending for three years the reciprocal trade program. They predicted that it would be sent to the White House free of any restrictive amendments.

The senate has agreed to limit speeches to 15 minutes on various amendments in an effort to obtain passage before tonight's recess.

"It is the desire of all of us to dispose of this bill today," senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley said.

WIND TO BLAME

It Keeps Old Sol's Rays Cool After Freeze During Night.

Despite the bright sunshine this morning, Mansfielders were on the streets either complacent in their winter coats or shivering in their light spring coats.

The temperature dropped to freezing point again last night and a cold west wind whipped over this section under the very nose of Old Sol.

Yesterday's high point was 55 degrees. This morning thermometers hovered around 40 and at noon had risen to 42. People who have a nose for weather insist that there will be snow again before April moves off the calendar, and furnaces are still going strong.

The forecast is for continued "fair and colder" today and tomorrow.

Urgent Call for Help Radioed by British Steamer

BOSTON—(AP)—An urgent call for assistance was received today from the British steamer King Edward by the coast guard cutter Spencer. The Spencer advised she was proceeding to the King Edward's position, which was believed to be about 550 miles north west of Cape Flores, The Azores.

The King Edward on March 30 reported she lost the use of her rudder but believed she could await the arrival of a salvage tug from Halifax, N. S.

Today she advised the Spencer she was at the mercy of a southerly gale. All vessels in the vicinity were directed to her aid.

The Spencer, when she received today's call, was one of the two weather forecasting stations recently established one third and two thirds of the way across the Atlantic. She advised headquarters she was about 400 miles away from the Britisher.

A Nova Scotian tug, the Foundation Franklin, which was originally sent to her aid, advised the Spencer she also was hove to in a gale.

Rank Outsider Wins Grand National Race at Aintree

AINTREE, Eng. —(AP)— Bogskar, a rank outsider, came from nowhere to win the 102nd Grand National steeplechase today.

MacMoffat was second and Gold Arrow, third.

While L. Scott Briggs' MacMoffat, second last year, and Gold Arrow, owned by J. E. Neill, ran with the leaders from the start, Bogskar trailed. He closed fast, however, to carry Lord Stalbridge's silks to victory by four lengths. MacMoffat was six lengths in front of Gold Arrow.

Bogskar was a 25 to 1 shot in the betting. MacMoffat was held at 5 to 1 by the crowd estimated at more than 100,000, while Gold Arrow was considered to have no better than a 50 to 1 chance.

Seventeen of the 31 starters completed the four miles, 856 yards.

Arthur Sainsbury's Symaethis finished fourth. Bogskar carried 144 pounds over the long journey in nine months, 20 3-5 seconds, only one fifth of a second slower than the record established by Golden Miller in 1934.

Kilstar, overnight favorite from Dorothy Paget's stable, and Mrs. Louis E. Stoddard's Milano, chief of the two American-owned contenders never were factors. The other American entry, John Hay Whitney's National Night fell the first time around the course.

Vendol Beat Everything Said For It Says Local Citizen

Well known painting contractor says he hadn't been feeling right for a long time before taking celebrated medicine. Like a different person now.

MR. WILEY A. WILL

The fame and popularity of Vendol becomes more firmly established day after day as one well known person after another comes to Central Drug Store and makes a statement for publication to the Vendol Man, giving this celebrated Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine full credit for his new feeling of well-being.

Mr. Wiley A. Will of 87 McPherson Street, Mansfield, took Vendol upon the recommendation of people he read about in the papers and says that "it has even surpassed everything good said about it."

"I suffered all the time from constipation and I noticed when this trouble was worse that I'd have sour indigestion, and so much gas in my stomach that it made me miserable by causing palpitation, "heartburn," and a feeling that I couldn't take a full breath. At other times it caused sour stomach, acid risings, and feeling like there was a lump in my throat. Many nights my sleep was ruined by restlessness.

"Vendol seemed to be made exactly for me and gave the grandest relief from constipation I had known for a long time, and with this relief there followed relief from the sour stomach, gas, acid risings, and the other symptoms which had kept me miserable. Now I eat hearty meals of most anything I want.

"I feel fine now, and have the highest regard for Vendol, so am glad to pass the good word along to others who may be suffering like I was."

If constipation is what is causing you to suffer from indigestion, sour stomach, gas, burning sensation, acid risings, lump in the throat, or is making your skin look dull, sallow, with little pimples, or makes you feel sore, stiff, dizzy, and headachy, start taking Vendol and see if it doesn't soon make you feel like a different person.

You are invited to talk freely with the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Corner Main & 4th Streets without obligation, but give Vendol a chance to help you as it has so many all around here. Get Vendol today from most any druggist.

NEWSPAPER ADS MORE HELPFUL

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—(AP)—Professor Frank Hutchinson of Rutgers university department of journalism said a survey of 286 New Brunswick and Highland Park housewives showed that nine out of ten believed newspaper advertising more helpful to them than radio advertising.

The survey by journalism students also indicated 93 to 94 per cent of housewives found newspaper advertising helpful in shopping, and that 81 to 83 per cent were aided by the advertisements in "keeping up" with latest styles.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ben Hogan, the golfing hot shot, probably will be the new pro at the swank Lido club on Long Island. Everybody on Broadway and its side streets thinks the N. B. A. move to investigate boxing is aimed at one man—Mike Jacobs.

Pitching, Defense Help Indian Club

CORDELL, Ga.—(U.P.)—The rare Cleveland combination of strong pitching and an airtight defense today looked the key to any success for the Cleveland Indians in the ensuing baseball season.

* * *

The tribe has boasted the pitching for several seasons past along with some timely slugging. But the defense, especially around the second base, was a perennial headache.

* * *

Yet today Indian partisans are labeling the youthful Lou Boudreau at shortstop and Ray Mack at second base as the finest defensive unit in the league. Neither was on the club at the start of last season.

In addition, Russ Peters, a rookie from Atlanta, stacks up as a shortstop who could play regularly on half of the other teams in the league but seems destined to warm the bench to give way to the brilliant Boudreau.

Peters and Mack shone again yesterday and Bullet Bob Feller turned in another effective pitching display to nose out the New York Giants, 1 to 0. The only run of the game was a homer by Ben Chapman off Carl Hubbell in the first inning.

Feller yielded a triple, a single and two walks in the same inning but sneaked out without a score. He picked Bill Jurges off first and got John Rucker at the plate on an attempted score off a passed ball.

* * *

Feller allowed four other safeties during his seven-inning tenure. Al Smith held the Giants hitless in the last two innings.

* * *

Feller now has pitched 22 innings this spring with one run, 13 hits and 22 strikeouts

* * *

Vander Meer, Moore Face Test Today.

GREENSBORO, N. C. —(U.P.)— Johnny Vander Meer and Lloyd (Whitey) Moore get another chance today to demonstrate their fitness for regular berths on the Cincinnati pitching staff this season.

* * *

They were Manager Bill McKechnie's choices to hurl against the Boston Red Sox against whom Vandey lasted less than two innings on Monday.

* * *

Both Vandy and Moore were afflicted with wildness last season. Their spring showings to date have been none too promising although Whitey has revealed flashes of effectiveness.

They drew distinguished company for ineffectiveness yesterday when the Red Sox landed on Paul Derringer for 11 hits and eight runs in five innings and eventually won, 13 to 3

Big Paul's curve refused to break and the American leaguers had a batting "jam session." Jimmy Foxx climaxed the fun with a home run when the bases were loaded in the fifth round.

Jim Turner who succeeded Derringer on the mound was spotty. He fanned Doerr and Tabor in succession to retire the side with the bases filled in the sixth but was belted for four runs in the next round. Red Barrett toiled for Cincinnati in the ninth and served up a home run pitch to Leo Nonnenkamp.

The Reds got only eight hits off Emerson Dickman and Herb Hash.

Are They Ready for Big Year?

Spring training for the baseball teams is about over and now all point for the regular campaign. The Cardinals are favored in the National league. Three of the leading lights of the St. Louis team are pictured. Left to right, they are Jimmy Brown, Johnny Mize and Don Padgett.

Bellville High Stars Attend Rookie School

Hamilton and Martin Among Army of Diamond Hopefuls Working Out at Fairground.

By CHARLES MARTIN

AMONG the army of diamond hopefuls here at the Mansfield Braves' rookie school are two youths who need no introduction to Mansfield sports' enthusiasts.

Their spectacular individual performances on the gridiron and hardwood the past season leaves little to be said in that department. But whether they'll be able to gain a place on the Braves' training roster remains to be seen.

Howard "Tick" Hamilton and Bill Martin, erstwhile Bellville high school athletes, are the lads.

* * *

Hamilton, who last fall marked his name in the state football record books by scoring 10 touchdowns in a single game and then winning the state individual scoring championship, is making his bid as a catcher. Hamilton was a halfback on the once-beaten Bluejay combine.

While Martin, ace center of the 1939-40 cage team, which won the Richland county league and county tournament titles, is a pitcher. Martin annexed the county league individual scoring crown.

Martin took his turn on the mound batting practice yesterday at the Fairground and Manager Dewey Stover, believes the lanky righthander has a chance of advancing. Hamilton will probably make his debut behind the plate today.

Cold weather halted practice early yesterday afternoon, but Stover planned to get things going at full speed today.

Another Mansfield boy put in his appearance today. He is Harold Remy, who played second base with the Liberty Park club last summer. Harold is a crack fielder and heavy hitter, but he arrived too late yesterday to take his turn at the plate.

Harley Freer, 190-pound outfielder from Ashland was on hand yesterday. Freer is a long distant hitter and may make progress in the school.

If weather conditions improve Stover expects to hold an intra-squad game the first of the week. As yet he has not allowed the mound corps to cut loose.

Mehock Names Track Squad

Selects Team for Newark Meet Saturday.

Coach Harry Mehock held final tryouts yesterday to select a team to meet the Newark Wildcats at Stadium field at 2 p. m. Saturday.

* * *

Held up by bad weather, this was Mentor Mehock's first chance since the season began to pick his squad. Usually the selection is made sometime in March.

* * *

Newark, however, reports the same difficulty. They too have had a tough time assembling a squad for the opener. Here is the team:

100 Yard Dash—Burns E. Jones, Caudle, Atwater, Au F. Jones.
440 Yard Run—Rose, Caudle, Woodberry, Yarman Sawhill, Burton.
880 Yard Run—Condon, Dusty, Burkholder, Sweet
Low Hurdles—Young Hershey, Atwater.
Pole Vault—Hershey Young Lace.
Broad Jump — E. Jones, Atwater, Burns.
High Jump — Richardson Packer, McGinty
Shot Put—Beer, Templeton Burns
Discus—Templeton, Beer, Hager
880 Relays—Jones, Brant, Atwater, Hershey Rose, Burns.
Mile Relay — Rose, Caudle, Lantz, Horvath, Woodberry.

Ohio State Opens Defense of Title

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Ohio State swimmers began an almost hopeless defense of their national amateur athletic union championship today at the two-day national tank meet in the New York Athletic club.

The Buckeye titlists of the last two years have been whittled down by graduation although At Patnik, diving ace, will be on hand to defend his double crown in the high and low board events.

Michigan, victor in the NCAA championship last week, and Yale, collegiate runnerup, were favorites to succeed Ohio State as the second college outfit ever to win the A. A. U. laurels. The new York Athletic club, second to the Buckeyes last year, look strongest of the private clubs.

Two Youths From Rookie School Sure of Tryouts.

Two members of the Mansfield Braves' rookie school today are assured of a tryout, Manager Dewey Stover announced. They are Mason Parvin, 18, of Akron and James Gilger, 20, of Mogador, O. Both are southpaws and Stover thinks at least one of them will be with the Braves when they open the Ohio State league season against Lima at the Fairground Wednesday night, May 1. The Mansfield club doesn't have a lefthander on its hurling corps.

Massillon-Toledo Waite Grid Contest Tops Fall Schedule

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Buckeye ballyhoo!

That Nov. 1 football contest between Massillon and Toledo Waite should be quite a thing. Both claimed the state scholastic title last season—Waite after winning 11 straight, including the Buckeye Bowl tilt with Portsmouth, and Massillon after not losing to an Ohio team since away back when. If both come up to the big game unbeaten, the fans probably will make that Massillon stadium bulge at the seams.

* * *

Ohio Wesleyan hopes the old "like father, like son" adage holds true this sping. The baseball bishops have Ralph Peckinpaugh, son of Roger Peckinpaugh, at second base; Al Betzel, son of Albert (Bruno) Betzel, at shortstop, and Frank Rickey, son of St. Louis' Frank Rickey, catching. The three dads were among the top-notchers in their big league careers.

* * *

Fostoria, smallest of the 16 cities in Ohio boasting organized baseball teams, has hung out the "help wanted" sign. The club decided to make the race again in the Ohio State circuit, but found itself minus a manager and players after the St. Louis Cards decided to cancel their working agreement. So, if you are a rookie or a free agent looking for a baseball job, it looks like Fostoria is your Shangri La.

Here and there about the state: Hillis Hume, Alliance high school great, has passed up several "offers" from Ohio colleges and will attend the U. S. Naval academy. A star student, Hume is more concerned about the physical exams than the scholastic, despite the fact he topped the Ohio scorers on the gridiron a couple of years.

If you want to claim a horse at an Ohio track this year, you must have a horse in that race or a previous one at the meeting. The new rule, passed by the state racing commission, goes into effect April 20 as Beulah Park opens the bang-tail season.

The touring six-day bicycle racers open tonight at Cleveland, after a disastrous showing at Columbus where the fans stayed away in big bunches

Ohio's golf courses and high school football spring training broke away from the barrier all even this week, the clubs preparing for a great season just around the corner, and the gridders getting in a month of preliminary work for next fall's play.

Ohio's high school basketball teams will go along next season with the new national association ruling that a full three-minute overtime period will be played after the regular before going into the "sudden death" extra sessions.

Makes New Marks

Mary McMullen Established Records in Women's Bowling League.

MARY McMULLEN established two new records in the Women's league at the Meder alleys last night.

Mary, bowling with the Brenner Jewelers, registered a 236 to set a new single game mark, and piled up a spectacular 634 to add the three-game record. She started with a 198, reached the high game in the second session and added an even 200 as she led her team to two wins over the Carek Florists.

Four others passed the 500-mark last night. They were Thelma Linster, 534, Margaret Baker, 531, Sophia Meder, 513, and Florence Handwork, 511.

A brilliant 661 gave O Grable individual honors in the Westinghouse B league at the Meder alleys

He opened with a 224, added a 201 and came in with a 236 for his high total.

Leo Yuncker stepped out and showed his teammates how to bang the pins as he collected a 626 for top honors in the Commercial B league. The only other keglers to pass the 600-mark were Harold Geiger, 603, and Jennings Heizer 601.

Mangrum Sets New Record In Masters' Meet

Texan Collects Brilliant 64 to Take Three-Stroke Lead Over Star-Studded Field.

By BILL BONI

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(AP)—The most amazing thing about any amazing round of golf is that invariably it could have been even more amazing.

An example is the 64 which Lloyd Mangrum, 25-year-old assistant professional from Oak Park, Ill., shot at the Augusta National Golf club yesterday in the first round of the Masters' tournament.

* * *

Not only was it eight strokes better than par for this handsome, true-test course, but it was one of the lowest scores ever recorded for any single round in a U. S. championship. It also broke the Augusta course record of 66 held jointly by Gene Sarazen and Byron Nelson.

* * *

On the bare essentials, it consisted of nine birdies, eight pars and one bogey. Beyond that, it included 32 shots hit perfectly to the greens and never off the fairways. It also included five birdie putts ranging in length from six to 25 feet.

Since that 64 gave Mangrum a three-stroke lead over Jimmy Demaret and his back-nine 30, it would seem it was a satisfactory round. Yet Mangrum could look back with disappointment on those three putts he needed to get down from 25 feet on the tenth hole; the eight-footer for a deuce that he missed on the 16th, and the putt for an eagle 3 on the eighth hole that hit the back of the cup. Boiling that all down, the 64 could have been a 61 with a break or two either way.

Back of Demaret in a tie for third were Open Champion Byron Nelson, winner here in 1937, and Harry Cooper, with 69's. Lawson Little and Craig Wood had 70's, while one-under-par 71's included Dick Metz, Henry Picard, Sam Snead, Tommy Armour and Willie Goggin. Bobby Jones, the old master, had a 79.

After leaving Notre Dame he went to Columbia as a backfield coach and later to LaSalle of Philadelphia.

Fans Want Action on Pytlak

Flood Newspaper Offices With Letters Condemning Or Defending Holdout.

By LARRY HAUCK

CLEVELAND —(AP)— With the opening of the baseball season less than two weeks away, Cleveland fans are beginning to show more than a passing interest in Frankie Pytlak's holdout campaign.

* * *

One baseball writer has demanded the Indians either trade or sign the little catcher. Fans have been flooding newspaper offices with letters defending or condemning the attitude of the club in refusing to boost its offer above $8,000 or swap Pytlak until he signs.

* * *

Frankie, who lives in Buffalo, N. Y., spurned the $8,000, representing a $3,500 cut, and stopped answering letters from club officials. He says he won't play for a second-stringer's salary.

Owner Alva Bradley, reiterating he considers the offer "fair" in view of Pytlak's .286 batting average in 63 games last season, says he believes Frankie "has retired from baseball."

"The fact he has refused to answer our last two letters certainly indicates that," Bradley said. "Frankie knows where the League Park office is. If he decides to sign for $8,000, we have the contract ready."

Bradley returned from the Florida training camp last week singing the praises of Jim Hegan, rookie catcher, but to most fans it is obvious that the club needs more than one experienced receiver (Rollie Hemsley) to get through the campaign. Other than Hegan the club has the aged Luke Sewell, listed as a coach, and Rookie Hank Helf.

Debates on the comparative ability of Pytlak and Hemsley are an old thing to Cleveland fans. They have even extended to the field and the clubhouse. Both were called "regulars" when the 1939 season opened. Hemsley later became the No. 1 receiver, partly because of injuries to Frankie.

Many fans believe Pytlak eventually will be swapped to the Browns, possibly in a trade for Pitcher Vern Kennedy.

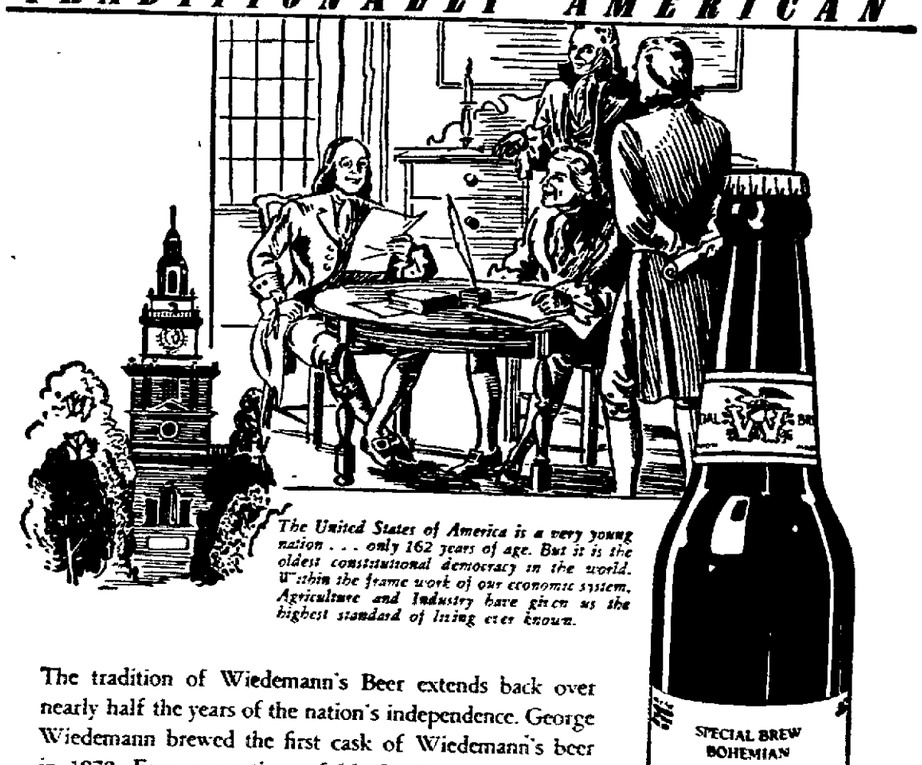
TRADITIONALLY AMERICAN



The United States of America is a very young nation . . . only 162 years of age. But it is the oldest constitutional democracy in the world. Within the frame work of our economic system, Agriculture and Industry have given us the highest standard of living ever known.

The tradition of Wiedemann's Beer extends back over nearly half the years of the nation's independence. George Wiedemann brewed the first cask of Wiedemann's beer in 1870. Four generations of his family have continued the business, using his original formula, following out the fine traditions that he established. That's the reason Wiedemann's is called for in thousands of American homes where it has been a favorite for almost three quarters of a century. Ask for Wiedemann's by name.

Half-Way Total Passes Cleveland Record.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Officials of the American Bowling congress revealed today that, with two days yet to go to the half-way mark, attendance has already exceeded the total for the 1939 show at Cleveland. Paid attendance at state fairgrounds coliseum to date totals 51,000.

Four changes on the leaders' board were chalked up last night. Paced by Thermon Gibson, with 628, and Edward McCoy, eldest brother of Benny McCoy, Philadelphia Athletics' new $45,000 second baseman, with 627, the Alzs Lager quintet from Grand Rapids, Mich., moved up to fourth place in the five-man team event.

* * *

A pair of veterans, Alex Innes and Herbert Mertins, scored 677 and 592 respectively for a total of 1,269 to take seventh place in the doubles. The two were teammates on the 1927 ABC championship Detroit Krakow Furniture team.

The Kling's Beer team of Flint, Mich., failed to maintain the form that put them in first place of the five-men team event Wednesday night with a 2,983 But Lee Murphy of the Flint quintet added 617 in the doubles, 556 in the singles, and 631 in the five-man event for 1,904 and took third place in the all-event.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(U.P.)—Scotland may be the home of golf, but Texas is the home of golfers.

Out there where the west begins the handclasps are a little warmer—and so are the scores.

* * *

You could close all the golf courses of the other 47 states and Texas would still see to it that the United States remained supreme in the sport. Right now there are enough great Texas-born of Texas-raised players to dominate any tournament anywhere in the world.

* * *

You couldn't find a better example than the tournament that is being played right here in Augusta today. It really is the masters' tournament for masters. It is to golf what the all-star game is to baseball. The field consists of 58 amateurs and professionals and they are here because of their records, and not because they know somebody or need a week's vacation in a southern clime.

So, having told you that, let me ask you to take a guess as to what men are leading the field after yesterday's opening play of 18 holes.

There is Texan Lloyd Mangrum on top with a first round score of 64 that tore par apart and gave him the distinction of having shot the finest competitive round in the history of the game. That 64 has never had an equal over a like course and under pressure.

Next to Mangrum is Jimmy Demarest, as Texas as a cattle brand. Jimmy fired an amazing 30 on the back nine to bag a 67.

Tied for third place are two more men who hail from the land where the antelope play, clouds are scarce, and discouraging words are rarer than Siamese twins with a lisp. One is Byron Nelson, present national open champion, and the other is Harry Cooper. Cooper was born in Scotland but he wasted a little time in getting to Texas. He arrived there at the age of two.

* * *

You can take eight Texas players and challenge the world. To the four we have mentioned add Ben Hogan, winner of three tournaments this winter; Ralph Guldahl, two-time winner of the National Open; Dick Metz, who learned his game in Dallas; and Lloyd Mangrum's older brother, Ray, who is affectionately known as the "Human No. 1 Iron."

* * *

Between them, these eight have won just about all there is to win. They have expressed a willingness to play any other eight men, anywhere, any time, and for anything.

If the match is ever made, take my advice and ride with Texas.

CHICAGO SPORTS EDITOR MAY HEAD PRO LEAGUE

CHICAGO—(AP)—Carl Storck, of Dayton, O., president of the National Professional Football league, may be replaced by Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune.

Ward said he had been offered the presidency, with increased powers, at an annual salary of $25,000 for 10 years. He said the offer was made by a majority of the club owners, but declined to say whether he would accept.

WINS FIRST ROUND

READING, Pa. — (AP) — The Akron, O., team won its first round game in the national Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament, defeating Danville, Pa., 83 to 33 yesterday.

Training Camp Briefs---

(By Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Tex. — The Pittsburgh Pirates came to town today with a record of winning 11 of their last 13 games, but not very proud of their latest triumph. In beating the Chicago White Sox 10-9 yesterday the Buccos issued nine bases on balls and made six errors.

* * *

CORDELE, Ga. — Lou Boudreau, whose ankle bone was chipped a couple of weeks ago, probably will break into the Cleveland Indians' lineup again next week. He had an active workout in the infield drill yesterday before the Tribe beat the New York Giants.

* * *

GREENSBORO, N. C. — Manager Bill McKechnie has an idea on how he could solve his left field problem, but it involves Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

After watching the lean slugger day after day in the clubs' touring series, McKechnie commented wryly: "The Reds could win the pennant by 20 games if we had that kid."

GRAND NATIONAL TURF IN GOOD CONDITION

AINTREE, Eng.—(AP)—Aintree's emerald turf was fast and hard for the first wartime running of the Grand National steeplechase today, with the track in the best condition of the past three years.

This made some difference in the betting on the 31 probable starters. H. C. McNally's Royal Danieli, who jumped last night to the position of second favorite at 9 to 1, was being crowded by Mrs. I. Strang's Professor II, priced at 100 to 9. Kilstar, Dorothy Paget's nine-year-old jumper who finished third last year, has been the heaviest backed at 7 to 2.

AKRON, TOLEDO WANT PLACE IN LEAGUE

DETROIT — (AP) — Fred Haner, president of the Michigan-Ontario Amateur Hockey league, said today that Akron, O., had shown interest in placing a team in the league.

Toledo already has been assured a place in the circuit next season. The league at present consists of two Detroit clubs and teams from Windsor, London and Stratford in Ontario.

CORDELE, Ga.—Zeke Bonura's status with the New York Giants is still unchanged. Although out of the good graces of Manager Bill Terry, he continues to look nifty around first base and hold his place among the club's leading hitters. He got one of six blows allowed by Bob Feller yesterday and Rookie Johnny Rucker, who is likely to end up in centerfield, got three of the others.

* * *

MOBILE, Ala.—Don Padgett is sold on his assignment as catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, but admits, "a year ago I wasn't." His only worry is that his legs get tired from crouching and along about the fifth inning he begins to feel weak.

* * *

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Joe DiMaggio is belting along at his old pace again. The slugging New York Yankee outfielder has hit safely in his last seven games. Charley Keller is keeping pace, getting a home run, a double and a single yesterday.

Sports Writer Selects Cincinnati to Repeat.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Here's how George Kirksey, United Press baseball writer, predicts the finish of the National League race: 1. Cincinnati—the solid club with the smartest pilot and best pitching. 2. St. Louis—Long on punch but short on infield defense and pitching. 3. Chicago—Everything uncertain including Hartnett's job. 4 Brooklyn—Lack punch to be a real menace. 5. Pittsburgh—A dangerous club if Frisch finds pitching. 6. New York—As Hubbell and Ott go, so go the Giants. 7. Boston—Tough at home, soft on the road. 8 Philadelphia—Better, but still the worst club in the league.

BIKE RACE OPENS

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's 10th international six-day bike race opens at 9 o'clock tonight on the Arena's 10-lap track with 20 riders in the field. The whirl will end at 11 p. m. next Thursday.

Waner Begins 15th Campaign

Star Outfielder, 37, Still With Pittsburgh Pirates

NEW YORK—(AP)—On April 16 Paul Waner, known affectionately to his ball playing intimates as "Rat", will celebrate his 37th birthday and open his 15th campaign in the outfield of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

* * *

Paul, the rugged little individualist, deserves a hand. In a sport largely dominated these days by sober young men cut to a pattern, Waner has continued to go his merry, irresponsible way, while setting a lifetime record for brilliance unmatched in the National league today.

* * *

Over 14 full seasons the 155-pound marvel from Harrah, Okla., has set a phenomenal batting average of .342. Oonly one player in the league, husky Johnny Mize of St. Louis, can top that mark. Mize has an average of .346, but only for three seasons, while Joe Medwick, the next closest rival to Waner, has pounded .338 over an eight-year span.

CASTLEMAN RETIRES

CORDELE, Ga. —(U.P.)— Pitcher Clyde Castleman of the Giants has retired from baseball for the year, Manager Bill Terry announced today. Castleman, examined by a physician in Memphis, found his thigh pains came from an old back sprain.

THEATERS

Production Notes: Ginger Rogers will get the character plum of the season in "Kitty Foyle". . . . Charles Laughton and Carole Lombard will be co-starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," the Sidney Howard stage play. . . . Harry Carey, currently starring in RKO's "Beyond Tomorrow," is taking a flyer on the legitimate stage after 27 years in pictures. He is with John Garfield in "Heavenly Express". . . . Eleanor Powell's dancing feet have carried her to romance and her marriage to Merrill Pye, art director of musical films, will take place within a year. The long wait is due to the small technicality of Pye's present married state. . . . At the preview of "It All Came True" the other night, a college student ran up to Ann Sheridan and handcuffed himself to her and then swallowed the key. What imaginations these publicity men have! . . .

* * *

Rooney at Ohio.

"Young Tom Edison" brings Mickey Rooney and Virginia Weidler to the Ohio theater tomorrow for six days. This is the first time in picture history that a single story has been told in two distinct feature pictures. Two pictures will tell the story of Thomas Alva Edison. The first one "Young Tom Edison" deals with the boyhood of the man who became America's greatest inventor, while "Edison The Man" will deal with his adult years. Spencer Tracy will be seen in this film within the summer. The boyhood years start in a little Michigan town where a small boy gets into difficulties through his experiments.

* * *

Second Steinbeck Story.

Mansfield picture goers will have the opportunity to compare the two films that have been made from John Steinbeck novels, with the closing of "Grapes of Wrath" yesterday and "Of Mice and Men" opening at the Madison tomorrow. The latter was made from an earlier novel and presents a striking character study of two men in the lower brackets of life, both semi-vagabonds. One is a half-wit of brutal strength whose heart is soft but whose hands are murderous, and it is a woman's soft, silken hair that proves his undoing. The other man is the one who tries to protect him. Lon Chaney, jr., son of the once greatest of character players, has the role of Lennie and Burgess Meredith plays his protector, while Gracie Fields is the charmer.

* * *

Villain Turns Hero.

Charles Bickford, as dark a screen villian as ever flicked across a celuloid vision, turns hero in "One Hour To Live" and not only clears up a murder mystery but saves the heroine in time to win her love. The picture, with Doris Nolan and John Litel, is current at the Ritz. The week end Western is "West of Carson City" with Johnny Mack Brown, Bob Baker and Fuzzy Knight, all stalwarts of the cinema plains.

* * *

Comedy and Action.

A Joe E. Brown comedy and a Hopalong Cassidy action picture make up the Majestic bill today and tomorrow. "Wide Open Faces" makes Brown, first a soda dispenser and then an amateur detective who seeks to find a fortune hidden somewhere in a old hotel. Jane Wyman and Lyda Roberti play the leading feminine roles. "The Showdown" is the 14th film of the Cassidy series and has William Boyd again riding on the trail of a band of crooks. This time they are crooked gamblers who operate at the races at county fairs.

* * *

Jack London Story.

"Torture Ship" is a crime picture, despite the fact that the author, Jack London, was dead long before the fad for crime plays started. The film is based on his story "A Thousand Deaths," and has an unusual angle. Eight notorious "public enemies" are promised immunity if they will submit to the experiments of a new glandular treatment. The experiments take place aboard a ship. Lyle Talbot and Irving Pichel head the cast. The second picture at the Park is "The Kansas Terror," a "Three Mesquiteers" serial.

British Tankers Refuel Warships Patroling Ocean

LONDON—(U.P.)—British warships charged with protecting Allied shipping and sweeping the seas clear of German commerce now may remain at sea eight months without putting into port to replenish supplies.

Refueling operations are carried out in midocean with the navy's fleet of 27 overseas tankers, augmented by a number of chartered tankers, acting as "feeder" ships. The tankers obtain their supplies from reserves placed at depots throughout the world before the outbreak of war.

Among the warships refueled under this new system were those which participated in the Battle of Montevideo, which led to the flight and subsequent scuttling of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

FIRES PHOTOGRAPHED

COLUSA, Cal.—(U.P.)—An ever-increasing technique is being developed for the fighting of forest fires. The latest improvement is for airplanes to fly quickly over the region where fires have broken out, photograph them and rush the negatives to the fire control center so that the scope of the fire and the best angles from which to fight it can be established.

PROFIT SELLING SLOWS UP MART AFTER ADVANCE

2-Day Upturn in Share Prices Keeps Optimism Alive on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK -- Stock market leaders today were confronted with further profit selling handicaps and prices turned a bit mixed after an initial advance.

Among resistant stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, Curtis-Wright, Western Union, N. Y. Central, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak.

The two-day upturn in share prices on heaviest dealings since the war boom last fall kept optimism alive in Wall Street.

Bonds were selectively improved and European securities markets steady. Commodities were a shade uneven.

Holders of merchandising stocks were cheered by the survey of Dun & Bradstreet estimating this week's retail sales topped the like period last year by 2 to 7 per cent.

Comfort was found in the forecast of President Murchison of the cotton textile institute, made in an address at Mobile, Ala., that regardless of which party wins, the presidential election in November will mark the beginning of an area of prosperity greater than any the country has previously known.

A constructive interpretation also was placed on the announcement that, for the week ended Wednesday, business loans of reserve member banks in New York City advanced $14,000,000 to equal the 1940 peak established early in January.

Seaplane Trappers Awaited Becomes Their Hearse

BRING BODIES OF MAROONED HUNTERS HOME

Starvation Victims Were Only 25 Flying Minutes From Civilization.

By RONALD DODDS
(UP Staff Correspondent)

ZEBALLOS, B. C.—The scarlet seaplane for which James Ryckman, 56, and Lloyd Coombs, 27, had prayed for months today was the hearse that brought their bodies to civilization.

Shrouded in burlap, the bodies crossed in 25 minutes the 20 miles of wilderness that had separated them from food and life. Ryckman starved to death on March 17; Coombs committed suicide rather than die the same death.

I accompanied Constable N. J. Winegarden and Coroner Ralph Thistle to the cabin on Vernon lake in the interior of Vancouver Island where the trappers died.

The lake, with a rough jetty extending into it some 20 feet, was a dozen paces from the cabin. Two distress flags, fashioned from sheets, flapped forlornly in the breeze.

Plea For Help.

In a canoe was discovered a rough cedar board, eight inches wide and a yard long, on which was scrawled in red chalk:

"SOS—South end of lake—Fishing—Been out of food for two months—For God's sake pick us up."

There were three bunks in the cabin. The body of Ryckman was in one bunk on the north side of the room; the body of Coombs occupied the bunk on the south side. A third bunk was piled high with magazines. Frayed and dirty playing cards, a cribbage board, a few pipes, empty tobacco tins and spare cartridges were piled on a crude table.

Several pails of remains of broths and stews made from small birds, animals and fish were sitting by the door. A pint bottle crammed with bodies of birds was hanging on a peg outside the door. Apparently they had forgotten about the bottle until they were too weak to crawl from their bunks.

Checked Calendar.

They had checked off the days since their arrival (July 30) on a calendar drawn on the wall.

Wild canaries flew from the cabin in swarms when we entered.

Besides the diary kept by Coombs, both left letters to their relatives. They obviously had been written after their hope of being rescued faded.

The bodies were held here, pending completion of funeral arrangements. It was understood Coombs' family had asked for a military plane to fly his body to Vancouver. He was a member of the provinc' militia, but had left for the woods before the war started. His mother, prostrated by news of his death, was in a Vancouver hospital.

$5,356 Received In Personal Tax Payments by Mail

Although personal tax books closed four days ago, the largest day's receipts, $5,356, since collections started April 1 poured into Treasurer John E. Kolb's office yesterday.

Most of yesterday's collections represented mail receipts which were not tabulated until after the regular collection period closed last Monday.

Total collections to last night amounted to $58,358, still far below the $104,000 collected during the first half period last year.

Real estate tax payments yesterday brought $7,013 into the county treasury to make a total of $462,856 with five days to go. The books will close next Wednesday night.

POLICE HUNTING CHECK FORGER

Believe Blank Check Stolen From Mill, Then Passed to Cigar Store Clerk.

Police today sought an alleged check forger after a downtown merchant complained that he had cashed a worthless check for a man who identified himself as John Thompson.

Russell Matthes, proprietor of the Crescent Cigar store, 22 South Park street, told officers he cashed a $23 check for the man on Mar. 30, and yesterday was informed by the bank that the signature was a forgery.

Police said the check was drawn on the Richland Trust company and had been issued to the Lantz Mills, Mansfield. It was made payable to John Thompson and bore the signature of W. H. Lantz.

Lantz, police said, told them that the bank stopped payment of the check when bank employes discovered the forgery.

He told officers he suspected a man who had been to his place of business on Mar. 30 seeking employment of taking the check from his office. He said the man told him his name was Thompson and that his home was in Westerville.

Calmly Watches As Flames Take Life of Mother

CHICORA, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. Emma Moore, 64-year-old invalid widow whose son hurled gasoline on her and stood by calmly as her clothes ignited, died today in a Butler hospital from face and body burns.

Lieut. Andrew J. Hudock said the son, George Moore, 24, wielded a hatchet to prevent a nurse and George's brother, William, from aiding the woman. The nurse, Ethel O'Brien, 25, suffered a fractured skull and William Moore was badly cut on the face and head.

Hudock said a murder charge would be filed against the normally mild-mannered youth, and a mental commission might be named to examine him.

It has not been definitely established, Hudock said, whether the mother's drenched clothes ignited from a bathroom stove or whether young Moore deliberately set her afire.

The mother died without telling police what happened and the nurse, knocked unconscious by a blow from the hatchet, had only hazy recollections. George, held on a district attorney's detainer, stayed stubbornly silent during police questioning.

DOUBT KIDNAPING

Missing Heiress Cashed Check Before Disappearance.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Police were inclined today to doubt a possible kidnaping theory in the disappearance of Sylvia Ladd Von Gontard after it was established she had cashed a $90 check before dropping from sight last Tuesday.

It was now believed by police the 20-year-old girl might have wanted to avoid becoming enmeshed in court litigation over the estate of her father, Baron Alexander Karl Frederich Von Gontard, a wealthy sugar broker.

SUSPECT "PUNKS"

Youths Believed Posing as Alcatraz Fugitives.

TULSA, Okla. — (U.P.) — Police suspected today that "two young punks" were spreading stories that they were Ralph Roe and Ted Cole, only convicts who ever escaped Alcatraz prison, to fabricate a reputation.

Interest subsided in a widespread hunt for three men who shot Don Calvin, taxi driver, in the back Wednesday night before they took his automobile and $3. Calvin at first had identified pictures of Roe and Cole as those of two of his attackers and said they ostentatiously referred to each other as "Roy" and "Ralph." Later, he could not identify their pictures.

80 TO COMPETE

ASHLAND — Approximately 80 students will be here from the county schools Saturday when the annual county elimination tests are held to determine membership on the county scholarship team to go to Kent State university on May 4.

The tests, to be held at the Ashland high school, are scheduled to begin at 9 a. m.

In charge of the arrangements are Noel Shaffer of Jeromesville, chairman; W. J. Himes of Hayesville, and Harold Carlson of Polk.

EXTORTION TRIALS

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Don A. Campbell, labor leader, now serving an Ohio penitentiary term for extortion, must stand trial on two similar charges, Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merrick has ordered him to be tried jointly with James C. McDonnell, former assistant business agent of the AFL-Glaziers' union. Campbell, former business agent of the union, was sentenced for extorting money from Cleveland business men under threat of halting construction work.

MAKE REPORTS TODAY IN CIVIC MUSIC MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

Workers in the membership campaign of the Civic Music association will report all of their renewals and new members to headquarters today between 7 and 9 p. m., according to Mrs. Paul Cropper, campaign chairman.

Some of the workers, Mrs. Cropper said, had not yet turned in the renewals of their old members, which might jeopardize their chances of getting into the association this year. New members may crowd out some of the old members who are tardy in turning in their dues, she said. Members are not registered until their dues are paid by check or cash this year.

Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, president, said that association membership is open to the public and that people do not have to be solicited to join—they may become members by taking their dues to the campaign headquarters, or by calling the office at Canal 3749 and asking for a solicitor.

Considerable interest in next season's talent is being shown since the list of available artists was published in Thursday's News-Journal, and there have been a number of calls regarding Tibbet, Martinelli, John Charles Thomas, and the combination of Rethberg and Pinza.

The talent committee, however, can make no choice until all memberships are reported in since the talent depends upon the number of members. It was even possible, Mrs. Cropper said today, that there might be four concerts next year, but this will be one of the points to be decided by the committee after the campaign closes.

The membership roster closes at 9 p. m. tomorrow, and no memberships, either old or new, will be accepted after that time.

KETTERING DECLARES NATION NEEDS NEW LABOR INDUSTRIES

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Charles F. Kettering, vice-president of General Motors Corporation, said today the nation's major problem is to supply more new labor-creating industries.

In a statement issued as chairman of the committee in charge of the celebration of the U. S. patent system's 10th anniversary, Kettering himself, a noted inventor listed the following items of "unfinished business" which still challenge man:

1. Adequate housing.
2. A modern highway system.
3. Preventatives and cures for man's ills, such as colds and cancer.
4. Communications, including facsimile transmission and television.
5. Air conditioning.
6. Fundamental information in physics and chemistry.
7. Knowledge on plant growth for better agriculture.
8. Improved transportation systems, including land, water and air.
9. More efficient modern cities.
10. Better knowledge of the properties of materials, both natural and synthetic.

"There is enough 'unfinished business' to supply thousands of problems for industry and science to work on," he said.

DETERMINE STATUS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A public hearing will be held May 6 to determine whether the Ohio Oil company of Findlay, O., its subsidiary Billings Gas company and the Mountain Fuel Supply company are under jurisdiction of the federal power commission. The companies have asked that the commission find them not subject to its jurisdiction. Ohio Oil and Billings produce and sell gas in Ohio and nine other states.

RIVALS CLASH

OBERLIN—(AP)—For the first time in the 80-year history of Oberlin college's student mock political conventions, two opposing candidates will participate in the event. Rep. Dudley A. White of Norwalk will serve as keynoter May 10, and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland will be convention chairman May 11. Both are candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination.

ROBS YOUTH, 17, IN GAS STATION

Third Filling Station Robbery on South Side Blamed on Same Gunman.

A lone gunman, believed by police to be the same bandit who robbed two gasoline filling stations in south side Mansfield in the past 60 days, last night held up and robbed the 17-year-old attendant at the D. W. Muth filling station, 343 Lexington avennue.

Pointing a small revolver at James Snyder, 17 Ruth avenue, the attendant, and George Caton, 138 Prospect street, the gunman forced Snyder to turn over $45 and then ordered the pair into a washroom.

Snyder told police the bandit walked into the station shortly after 9 p. m., pulled the pistol from his overcoat pocket and a brown money bag from the other pocket and ordered him to turn over the cash register receipts, and place them in the bag.

He said there was about $37 in the register and $8 in bills which he was ordered to remove from his pocket.

The gunman whom he described as being about six feet tall and with a heavy growth of whiskers then forced them into a washroom, Snyder said, and fled. They were unable to tell officers how the bandit escaped.

Officers said they believed the gunman to be the same one who held up a filling station at Lexington and Mendota streets, several weeks ago and a few days later robbed a filling station two blocks away on North Main street.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio Women's Christian Temperance Union members were urged last night to demand the teaching of temperance in the public schools.

Ohio law requires that the effects of alcoholic drinks and narcotics be taught in the schools and officials refusing to do so are subject to fine, Mrs. Jessie Morgan of Columbus, state W. C. T. U. legislative director, asserted.

"Make the teachers and superintendents teach it," she said. "It's in the law. Let's get busy and make them enforce it."

German Air Squadron Driven Off by Destroyer.

OSLO —(U.P.)— A spectacular air and sea battle in which a British destroyer drove off an attacking squadron of German airplanes was reported today by passengers of the steamship, Mira, which arrived at Bergen.

The battle occurred in the North Sea off the Scottish coast.

The Mira, a 1,132-ton passenger vessel of the Bergenske Dampskibsselkab line, was attacked by a group of German planes, passengers said.

The planes dropped five bombs but none struck the vessel. After attempting to bomb the ship two planes then returned and machine gunned the vessel, wounding two persons.

CHARGE CHILD KILLED FOUR IN BRUTAL MURDER

Police Check Amazing Story of 11-Year-Old Who Insists Mother Slew 3, Self.

discrepancies, however, led Edwards to conclude, he said, that Chloe awakened while her mother was still in bed; went to the kitchen where Marquis and Daphne were playing and fatally bludgeoned them; then encountered her mother in the hallway, struck her down with the hammer and beat her to death.

Chloe, suffering from a head injury police believe she either suffered in a struggle with her mother or she inflicted upon herself with the hammer to substantiate her story that her mother was responsible for the crime, answered police questions with no show of emotion.

One of Chloe's stories, Edwards said, was that her mother killed the children, set fire to her hair and then ordered her to strike her with the hammer to "stop this pain."

Police planned to renew their questioning of the girl today with the aid of her father who moved here with his family five years ago from Grand Springs, Mich.

Waves to Schoolmates.

Enroute home from the police station for a re-enactment of her version of the crime, Chloe waved airily to schoolmates who, faces white with terror, were clustered on the lawn.

Inside the house, she walked spritely through rooms whose walls were splotched with blood, telling her story in a lively chatter, Edwards said.

At one point, she strolled over and started to play a small organ purchased for her by her father, of whom she once remarked: "He's nuts."

Pointing to some books in her room, Chloe said:

"I'm a bookworm. I read all the time."

Little Patricia Axtell, a neighbor, told police she once saw Chloe fly into a rage and beat her mother repeatedly with a broomstick when her mother refused her a nickel for candy. She also said Chloe refused to obey her mother in simple household duties.

During the questioning of Chloe, her father once broke into tears and muttered "oh, my poor baby!"

Chloe looked up and, almost sneeringly, remarked: "Buck up, dad. Don't let it get you down."

Then she reached for the comic page of a newspaper and asked not to be disturbed as she read her favorite strips.

Early in the questioning, Chloe became hungry and demanded some "lemon pie and chicken soup."

When her order was filled, her eyes gleamed, and she exclaimed: "Oh, boy! That's my favorite dish."

Eats Pie, Then Soup.

She devoured the pie in a few quick bites and then ate the soup.

Captain Edwards said Chloe is strong for her age. She stands 4 feet 11 inches tall.

Mrs. Davis was about a head taller and nearly 40 pounds heavier than Chloe, but officers pointed out that the mother was anemic, and that the healthy, well-developed child could doubtless have bested her in a struggle. Mrs. Davis was almost scalped by the hammer blows and the heads of the three children also were badly battered.

Both Chloe and her father told Edwards Mrs. Davis had never before talked of "demons" or exhibited any sign of insanity. Davis added that she was "as normal as any woman could be."

school, was seated in his home when the storm struck from the southwest. Bricks from the demolished chimney fell through the roof and struck him on the head, causing a slight concussion. His wife pulled him out of the wreckage.

Still confined to his home today as a result of his injuries, Gray said it would cost about $400 to repair his residence.

"I didn't realize what had happened until a few minutes after the storm hit the house," he said. "One of our neighbors who saw it approach said it looked just like a big funnel of black smoke."

Gray commented that he thought after his experience that he "should have told someone in authority about it" but hadn't done so.

Gray said the wind drove pieces of rafters from the roof of the house at least two feet in the ground near his home. Barns and poultry houses in the area were hardest hit by the tornado.

It first struck near Vernon Junction and then followed a crooked path eastward, leaving its last mark in a woodlot southeast of Shelby. A number of trees were shattered along the storm's path.

In the United States, Chairman Pittman of the Senate foreign relations committee rejected fresh suggestions for inquiry into German allegations that seized Polish documents showed American diplomats favored the Allies.

Rejects Inquiry.

"Unauthentic publications of belligerent powers" should not be the subject of violent discussions in the peaceful United States, he held.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles described as "fantastic nonsense" German assertions that when in Paris he had discussed any French plans to "whittle down" Germany after the war.

Authorized German sources commented that in that case Welles must have been the victim of a French propaganda trick, referring to a photograph of Welles and the present French Premier Paul Reynaud beside a map on which the Germans said a reduced Germany was portrayed.

In line with the American neutrality policies, shipping men in Genoa, Italy, said the United States government had directed American export liners to cease calling at Marseille, France. Sailing lists indicated vessels of the line had been stopping there on westbound voyages.

United States officials also were keeping eagle eyes on the Japanese-sponsored government of Wang Ching-Wei in occupied Chinese territory. They are determined to hold Tokyo responsible for any action which might infringe on American rights.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 5, 1940.

April weather is Nature's variety show.

Russia is getting so provoked at the United States that she may reach the point of calling all her communists back home.

Now that passenger rates have been reduced by the railroads, congressmen and state legislators will probably act quickly to cut their mileage allowance—or won't they?

Roosevelt's Third-Term Attitude

NOW that Wisconsin Democrats have endorsed Franklin D. Roosevelt for third term as president, and the "draft Roosevelt movement" appears to be gaining ground in other states, in spite of substantial opposition within the party, more than ordinary interest attaches to the discussion of this subject which appears in today's installment of "Washington Merry-Go-Round," elsewhere on this page.

It becomes increasingly evident that President Roosevelt does not intend declaring himself on the third-term issue until the very last moment—and, strange as it seems, Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, writers of the Merry-Go-Round, revealed this to be the president's strategy nearly three years ago, on July 16, 1937.

So far as can be determined, this was the first article to appear anywhere stating that Roosevelt would not declare himself one way or the other until late in 1940, and explaining why. In view of all the third-term speculation that has filled columns of space since then, it is astonishing to look back on these words written less than six months after Roosevelt's second inauguration:

"A lot of people have been puzzled by Roosevelt's recent failure to deny third term rumors, especially when he told a newspaperman asking this question to 'put on the dunce cap and go stand in the corner.' Many are wondering why, since he originally renounced third term intentions, he doesn't allay any uncertainty by repeating the denial.

"To close advisers, Roosevelt has given an explanation for this position. He says that he wants to profit by the mistake of Teddy Roosevelt, who kept repeating that he had no intention of running again, and as a result lost influence with the Republican leaders.

"Franklin Roosevelt intends that his influence in the Democratic party shall continue to be a real and vital factor until the end of 1940. Also he intends to have an important part in the selection of his successor. Therefor, while he definitely does not intend to run for a third term, he doesn't intend to be harping on that point constantly.

"One statement that he will not run again, he has told intimates, is enough."

All of which might lead to the conclusion that Roosevelt has no intention of running for third term and that present agitation along that line is no more than shrewd political maneuvering.

The Leisure Time Problem

JVAN FRIESLAND, author of "Inside America," raises the problem of leisure time. He thinks there may be too much of it. The employed, working only 30 hours a week and using 68 hours for eating and sleeping, have 70 hours left. Ten hours a day of leisure, he suggests, is too much for people who have no creative interests outside their jobs.

The author's figures allow no time for getting to and from work, although few factory, office or store workers live next door to their places of employment. He has allowed no time for church. Bathing, shaving, shining shoes, and reading newspapers figure in most American lives and take some time, even with minimum estimates, but he ignores them.

These deductions leave the worker considerably less than 70 hours of leisure a week for use outside his job. It is true that there are unfortunate men and women without work habits who doze or attend too many movies, or waste time and injure mind and character by idleness. Many others, however, make good use of their leisure hours.

Crowded adult education classes show them studying to get ahead in their jobs or to fill gaps in their formal schooling. The growth of gardening shows many people making healthful use of leisure time. Thousands of Americans enjoy wholesome recreation who used to lack time for it.

Except for purely manual tasks, involving monotonous repetition or much physical exertion, the 30-hour week impresses many people as being too short for profitable and adequate production, but this is a matter for experimentation and adaption to conditions, rather than for arbitrary conclusions.

The working week need not be lengthened, however, merely to solve the problem of leisure time. That puzzle has other solutions, in the development of individual abilities by education and training and in learning the satisfaction of well-used leisure.

Unexpected Professional Pride

PROFESSIONAL pride sometimes appears in the most unlikely places. There was a little hold-up in Cleveland, for instance, the other night.

Two armed men strode into a gas station about closing time. One of them pulled out a pistol and said: "This is a stick-up. How much money have you?"

"Ten dollars of the company's money and fifty cents of my own," replied the attendant. "Not enough!" said the intruder haughtily, and the two yeggs backed out and vanished.

Maybe they were making a cool calculation that it wasn't worth the risk, but more likely it was a haughty gesture showing their contempt for such small change.

More Trade With Argentina

ARGENTINA trade statistics for the months of January and February this year show a number of changes from the same two months a year ago.

Imports from the United States doubled in that period compared with 1939 and put us ahead of Great Britain as the chief source of Argentina's import trade. Our country supplies 27.1 per cent of the total, Britain 20.9.

This is good news to American business. But trade with Argentina should be still greater. It is the leading country of South America, as the United States is of North America. It would be better for both, and for the whole western hemisphere, if these two energetic nations knew each other better.

Hitler says he's ready to sacrifice a million lives—always remembering to be quite careful about his own.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

RENO, Nev.—In this column I am going to try to sort out a few of the postcard impressions a man picks up between trains in Reno. . . . I got a kick out of a pawn shop called The End of the Trail, because there you can see a wonderful collection of old second-hand frontier guns which no doubt figured sharply in the boom-town adolescence of this mining district.

One in particular is a pepper pot gun, a pistol that has nine barrels which can be fired separately, or collectively. Another is a "life preserver," meaning a small gun built into a pair of brass knucks. They also used to build a small, sharp knife into the knucks, so that as you crushed a man's jaw you also could lay him wide open, but I did not see one of these at The End of the Trail. But it had old Colt single action .45's, known as "peace makers," and these came in cap and ball, or cartridge models.

* * *

THEN there were the miniature bottles of spirits which are only two inches high and which are now available in only six states in the Union. In Reno, every bar, drug store and restaurant has them, and they sell from a quarter to 60 cents apiece. All the standard brands of Scotch, rye and Irish whiskies, as well as cordials, gins and anything else you can think of, are available in miniature. They are just like the big bottle on the locker-room shelf, with the exception that they hold only about a pony full. These should be kept as souvenirs and as something with which to edify and entertain one's friends. Any man who would open one and drink its contents is the sort of barbarian who would pillage a temple, or hock his wife's wedding ring for a can of beer.

* * *

RENO citizens, or at least the downtown citizens, dress pretty western. Not so many go in for boots, but most of them wear those big hats and neckerchiefs, and also frontier-style shirts, which are of broadcloth and have yoked shoulders, buttons from cuff to elbow, and over-sized breast patch pockets. It may be that this is a holdover from the "Virginia City" premiere, but it seems to me the women go in for western motifs more than the men. You see hundreds of fringed, knee-length buckskin skirts of tan, white and black, with fancy vests of the same color and material. You may have noticed that only this year the east began to feature satin and chiffon blouses with mannish collars and wide bishop sleeves. Reno women have been wearing these for years.

Walking the street is a great number of young men with black beards. It seemed reasonable to identify them as members of some sect, but that is an error. They are University of Nevada students preparing to celebrate Founders' Day.

Income Tax on Smaller Earnings

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

CONGRESS recently has been debating the desirability (or the contrary) of lowering income tax exemptions.

That is to say, at present a citizen whose income is below a certain modest level isn't taxed at all. If it's above that level he begins to be taxed. As his income gets larger he's taxed at a gradually increasing rate. If he earns his income he doesn't pay as high a rate on it as he does if he gets it in the form of dividends on some investment.

All this probably is no information to income taxpayers. In mid-March they had to make their usual contributions to their various collectors, and at that time undoubtedly studied the law very thoroughly.

However, it behooves the folk whose incomes thus far have been below the taxable level to take notice that there's a good bit of Washington sentiment in favor of socking considerably smaller incomes than heretofore. Naturally this, if it's done, will catch a great many individuals who haven't paid a cent's worth of that kind of taxes up to date.

Now, an income tax generally is spoken of as about the most unpopular of all forms of taxation to those who have to pay it.

Of course it isn't unpopular, though, to those whose incomes are below the taxable level. On the contrary, they incline to regard it as a levy on a privileged class, and to feel that it serves 'em right for being so opulent. As soon as the thing begins to hit today's "exempts," however, it's a safe prediction that their squawk will be something awful.

Congressmen foresee just what a howl there'll be and are hesitant to antagonize so many voters. Just the same, the money is badly needed. Furthermore, lawmakers are quite numerous who argue, confidentially, that an unpopular tax is the best kind of a tax, for the very reason that the taxpayers are sure to yell bloody murder at the first sign of governmental extravagance.

Indirect Taxation.

This school of thought contends that indirect taxation is bad business because the public doesn't realize that it's being taxed at all—it suffers under the load, but fails to comprehend what it's suffering from.

For instance, assume that Uncle Sam gets his revenue from a customs impost. Importers pay it on goods they bring into the country, but when they sell these goods they charge that much more for them. Consequently the ultimate consumer really is the chap who pays the tax, though he doesn't know it because the money isn't taken directly out of his pocket by a treasury official. He may growl because he considers prices too high, but unless he's a good deal of an economist he's unaware that he's being taxed.

Sales taxes are the same way. The folk who do the selling charge that much more for the stuff they sell. Or perhaps they charge more than the tax amounts to.

Revenue Stamps, Too.

Ditto revenue stamps. When I buy a package of cigarets my notion is that cigarets are what I'm paying for. I have to stop and do some deliberate thinking to realize that I'm paying also for the revenue stamp across the end of the package.

But there's no misapprehension about income taxation.

To begin with, making out the "return" is a nuisance.

And you know exactly how much you're paying. It HURTS, and you know it's a TAX that's hurting you.

You wouldn't pay that tax if you could help it. Uncle Sam holds you up and takes it away from you. He implies a threat, too—the threat of a criminal prosecution if you're balky. The form of the thing is offensive. It makes you sore if you're like the average person.

Proponents of the income tax contend that all this is a good thing—it makes the country "tax conscious."

But that congress really will lower the exemption figure isn't so certain. Plenty of its members who favor the plan in theory are decidedly timid about going on record to that effect on account of what they are pretty sure the voters' reaction will be next election day.

Listen, World!

Stand and Understand.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

TWO THINGS are necessary if you would make a great adventure of life—YOU MUST BE ABLE TO STAND . . . AND UNDERSTAND. Understand Yourself, first of all.

That may seem to you an easy job, but it isn't. The wisest men on earth have never completed that job. We know less about ourselves than about any other subject on earth. It's harder to understand yourself than any other creature—AND IT TAKES MORE COURAGE TO FACE THE TRUTH ABOUT YOURSELF THAN TO DO THE MOST HEROIC FEAT.

If you're studying anything else you WANT to learn the truth.

But if you're studying yourself you want to DUCK the truth.

Yet your whole success as a human being depends on understanding yourself.

Start today. Study yourself—ruthlessly. Cut out your alibis, your self-pity, your evasion, your self-coddling. Study exactly why you do things and don't pretty up the diagnosis.

Get books to help you—sound, simple books on psychology and physiology. Read—and then don't apply the facts to the other fellow—apply them to YOURSELF.

Understand yourself as fairly as possible—

THEN TRY TO UNDERSTAND THE OTHER FELLOW.

There, too, you're up against a tough job—a job made tough by your own egotism. You've always felt that it was quite easy for YOU to understand your fellow men. You MIGHT need instructions on how to operate a new fangled can opener or make a special cake, but when it came to judging another soul, YOU HAD ALL THE DOPE!

Well, you haven't. Only God has the dope on the other fellow. So stop judging and study. Look behind his orneriness and discover the thoughts of his impulse. Hidden hurts and hidden hopes influence you—they influence him, too. You're both better and worse than you seem—so is he. Feel as tolerant for his weakness as you do for your own. UNDERSTAND HIM, EVEN IF YOU HAVE NO NOBLER REASON THAN TO USE HIM FOR YOUR ENDS.

Understand yourself—understand the other fellow—

THEN TRY TO UNDERSTAND THE WORLD IN WHICH YOU LIVE.

Try to understand the great currents of human progress and your own place in that current. Learn to think for yourself, not only as a member of your own family, and inhabitant of your own village, a citizen of your own nation—BUT AS A CITIZEN OF THE WORLD.

Then, when you have come to an end of your own understanding, seek for the strength to STAND that which is not understandable.

You will never be able to understand life nor death nor pain nor justice—nor God himself. You must spend your life in a riddle, but you may spend it as a conqueror if you have learned how to STAND.

Stand gallantly: Do not sneer, or whine, or cry, or run away or fly into tantrums at destiny. Stand firm, with your head unbowed and your heart unshaken, whatever may happen to you.

Ohio Anecdotes

Visits Indian Friends.

INDIANS swooped down upon a settlement in 1775 and Mrs. William Ingles and her four-year-old baby, Thomas, were taken captive by Shawnees.

After living with the Indians until he was 17, Thomas was ransomed by his father who had just learned of his son's whereabouts. The older Ingles had a "young Indian" on his hands, however, and tried to overcome the early training by extensive formal education, but to no avail.

Thomas Ingles returned to the vicinity of his youth and stayed at the garrison at Point Pleasant. Indians, recognizing Ingles, urged him to visit the teepee of his aged foster father.

He spent several weeks visiting the Shawnee towns, where the friends of his youthful days were overjoyed to see him.

Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.—Hebrews 4.16.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In the last 48 hours, inner circle third termers have received what they consider their most encouraging word so far.

They have been assured that the president will say nothing about his intentions "until the last moment," and that the "last moment" means right up to the Chicago convention.

The last thing the third term advocates want is for Roosevelt to talk now. They know no better than the next man whether he is, or is not, seriously thinking of running again, but they are firmly convinced that the longer he withholds making a decision the better the chances that he can be "drafted."

For some months their chief private worry has been that under the heavy pressure he would break down and declare himself. One of the keystones of their strategy has been to forestall any such statement.

Following Jim Farley's Boston bombshell—a big shock to the White House, which had believed that Jim could be "handled"—the inner circlers became particularly concerned. Their fears were inflamed by an inside tip that Farley was secretly planning to demand a "yes or no" answer after his current speaking tour, also by a report that the president had intimated to a congressional leader that a statement might be expected soon.

This dread has now been dispelled. One of the group has personally been told by Roosevelt he would not talk regardless of what Farley or anyone else demanded.

The inner circler went to the president to urge him not to break his silence. Roosevelt listened quietly, then smiled and said, "Don't worry. I'm not going to say anything until I get ready to do so, and that means the last moment."

Note—How great a shock was Farley's Boston declaration is shown by a confident remark Roosevelt made to a New England leader a few days before Farley tossed his hat into the ring. He said: "Don't worry about Jim. You can take my word for it he'll come around. Jim's a loyal, personal friend and he won't do anything without telling me about it first."

Muffed Shiner.

IT DOESN'T happen often, but house Republicans muffed a marvelous chance the other day to hang a shiner on the Democrats.

Representative Leon Sacks was making a speech castigating GOP "misrule and anti-labor bias" and citing various instances in the past decade. Springing to his feet, Representative James McGranery, another Philadelphia Democrat, asked rhetorically:

"And how about that governor of our neighboring state, Ohio, who called out troops to suppress strikers? Wasn't he a Republican?"

"He certainly was," thundered back Sacks. "My distinguished colleague and learned friend is absolutely right. He was indeed a Republican and there you have another example of Republican bias against labor."

The two Pennsylvanians sat down, much pleased with themselves and their bull's-eye. The Republican side sat silent. A few minutes later, after the house had passed on to another subject, McGranery suddenly poked Sacks in the ribs.

"Hey!" he exclaimed out of the side of his mouth, "I just remembered. It wasn't Bricker (present Republican governor of Ohio) who called out the troops. It was Davey (his Democratic predecessor) who did that."

Wall Street Coup.

THE WALL STREET Old Guard, toppled from stock exchange control following the Richard Whitney scandal, is quietly setting the stage for a comeback.

One of the reforms forced through by former SEC Chairman William Douglas was that a majority of the board of governors of the exchange should be commission brokers instead of bankers. Douglas' contention was that the brokers, dealing directly with the public, were more public-conscious than bankers.

As a result of this change, Edward Bartlett, partner of E. A. Pierce & Co., largest commission brokers in the country, was made chairman of the board, while Robert Hutchins, president of Chicago university, and General Robert E. Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck, became members representing the public. For a while things went along smoothly, but the Old Guard, while subdued, was not licked.

When Hutchins demanded disciplinary action against J. P. Morgan, Thomas Lamont and other Wall Street big-shots for not revealing Whitney's peculations, the Old Guard swung into action and blocked him. Hutchins thereupon quit in disgust.

Months later, after the incident had blown over, a utility banker was appointed in his place as a representative of the public.

The following year the Old Guard scored again by quietly eliminating several brokers from key places on the Exchange board and replacing them with bankers. A few months ago it chalked up a third victory when General Wood, irked by the refusal of the Exchange to set up "customer banks" for the protection of investors, announced that he would quit at the end of his term this spring.

Now, with the annual board elections soon to take place, the Old Guard is quietly preparing to regain complete control by ousting Bartlett.

The secret plan is to nominate one of their group to oppose Bartlett and by a sudden, whirlwind campaign to jam him through. Then, with the chairmanship in their hands, they will be in a position to go gunning for the final prize, the presidency of the Exchange.

Note—The Investment Bankers' association, whose leaders are closely allied with the Wall Street Old Guard, is raising a $500,000 war chest to finance an attack on the SEC. IBA moguls also are negotiating with a high-powered advertising firm to handle the publicity of their campaign.

Merry-Go-Round.

THIS is the way the Townsend Weekly described the aged old-age pension czar's meeting with Mrs. Roosevelt: "In its fourteen history-studded decades, the White House has had many an eminent visitor, but none more distinguished and none more graciously received than the spare, white-haired gentleman who crossed its threshold one afternoon recently. The gentleman was Dr. Francis E. Townsend, beloved champion of millions. . . . When Federal Works Administrator John Carmody was forced to cut PWA rolls recently, he wrote hundreds of letters to business men seeking jobs for the dismissed employes. He placed over 350 of them. . . . The current congress has investigated many things, and soon may add the capital's George Washington university to the list. Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, university president, is under fire because of an unexplained dismissal of a woman faculty member, and an alumni group is seeking a congressional probe of the school.

About Growing Old

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I FIND that I am growing older every year. For some time I have interested myself in learning from successful older folks the recipe for growing old without regret.

"I still could dance," a little lady of 80 told me the other day, "if they'd only play the right music—but they don't!" So instead of dancing she is weaving rugs and quilting, tending a garden and caring for houseplants. Her house is large—"in case there is company"—and she is one of the interesting people in our village.

My friends include a man of 85 who still sells fire insurance; a man near 80 who owns a filbert grove; an old couple who, in the middle 80's keep their home and entertain their growing great-greats every Christmas. The quilts great grandmother pieces have stitched into them more of romance than those a bride may make. The garden from which great grandfather brings a mess of parsnips has furnished more than food—it has brought a real gift. Only someone who has produced something by his own effort can really give. (Think about that.)

A farmer ought to plan for the time when he will be too old to farm. I have thought that a flock of hens, an apiary or a grove of nut trees might provide a man with interest and usefulness when he is old. But few old men take up new tasks, so I am interested in hens and bees and nut trees now. So far as I can ferret out from these old folks, the main thing is to have some busy work that others need or admire, and that does not require more effort than aged people can give.

I hope I shall not talk too much. My grandfather was long-winded, I remember, and how tired we children used to get of hearing the same old stories twenty times. So, if I repeat, in this column, more often than seems consistent with Nature in her progress around the farmer's clock, just stop me, please.

There is, I think, a pleasing steady rhythm running through farm life. I try to show it as it feels to me, steadfast, habitual, good. Perhaps the two best things in the world to do are to teach a boy and to plant a grove of trees.

(Editor's Note—Letters to the writer of Farmer's Diary should be addressed to Calvin A. Byers, Bellville, Ohio. He will appreciate your comments on topics mentioned in his articles, or suggestions you may care to offer.)

GOES TO HIGHER COURT FOR WRIT IN LIQUOR CASE

Attorney Seeking Mansfield Woman's Release From Jail Loses in Decision.

His motion for a new trial in common pleas court overruled, Atty. Jacob Wagenhals today had appealed to the Fifth district court of appeals for a writ of habeas corpus to release Mrs Mary Kirkendall, 40, from the county jail.

The appeal followed the refusal of Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston to free Mrs. Kirkendall who is serving out fines totaling $500 for liquor law violations.

Mrs. Kirkendal was returned to the county jail about a month ago after she had been released under the Ohio insolvency law.

Two other liquor law violators, Mrs. Dorothy Williams and Roy Mason, were taken back to jail at the same time, but they later gained their freedom when friends posted bonds to insure payment of their fines.

Judge Huston refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus for Mrs. Kirkendall March 6 and two days ago overruled her counsel's motion for a new trial.

She first went to jail last October and unless she is released under a writ or provides bond, she will not have served out her fines until Sept. 6.

Mansfield Service League Hunting Up Shoes for Kiddies

Wanted—shoes and more shoes.

Mansfield Service League members in the past week have seen school children who are forced to wear galoshes in the place of shoes, and others who must wear overshoes because the soles are missing from their shoes.

The situation is fairly desperate, according to Mrs. R. R. Black, league president, for a number of small children who must go to school and who are without footwear.

The League has no funds available, and will either accept shoes and have them repaired or will accept money for new shoes. Mrs. Black can be reached at Canal 1798.

CLOSE KNOTHOLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(U.P.)—Kentucky Derby "knothole" spectators may have to buy admission tickets if they expect to witness the running of the 1940 derby

Officials of Churchill Downs have erected a brick wall around the entire backstretch of the famous track from where many hundreds of persons have seen the derby free in past years. Step-ladders and pulley-lines often were pressed into service to hoist fence-sitters to vantage points on the old wooden barrier.

It is estimated that there are 10,000,000 rubber trees in Liberia.

Yes sir, this is the real test of whisky! Flavor that carries through in highballs, richness that is not obscured by lemon juice or bitters, smoothness that makes "straights" a new pleasure.

We make this whisky in our old-fashioned slow way. It's a sour mash whisky. The limestone water of our Bourbon Springs has no harshness, and brings out rich flavor.

Without him, we might not have known the joys of music of the past and present, as it is now available to us on that seeming instrument of wizardry --- the radio - phonograph. Without him we might have waited years to enjoy the comforts, conveniences and benefits that his numerous inventions have provided. It has been said of Edison -- "He left the world a better place to live in," and for that the world shall revere his memory through the years to come, even as today.

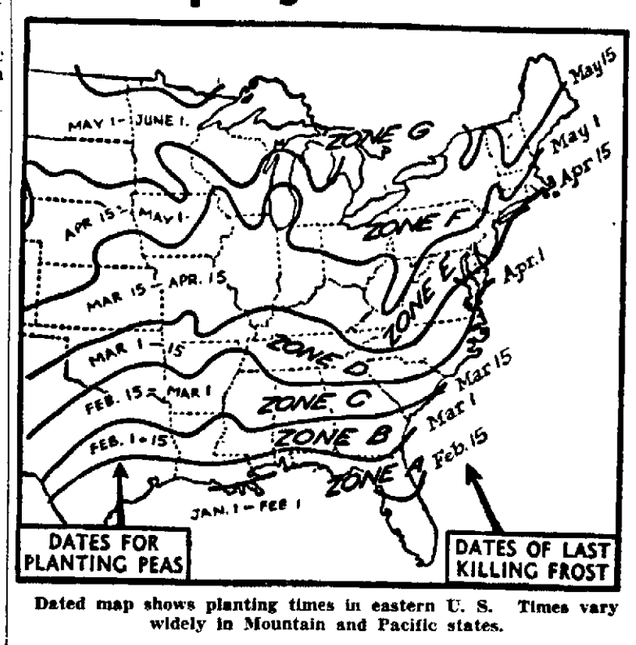
Planning a Garden?

Best Time to Grab Spade—When Spring Chill's In Air



Dated map shows planting times in eastern U. S. Times vary widely in Mountain and Pacific states.

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
(AP Feature Service Writer)

A SUPERSTITION, still believed by many folks, warns farmers never to plant potatoes in the dark of the moon, because the eyes wouldn't sprout. That's only one of scores of planting superstitions, most of which, planting science says, have no basis of fact.

FIFTH IN A SERIES

The best time to start a garden is in the spring when a fire in the fireplace still feels good to the shinbones That's a good time to draw up an easy chair, pull out the seed catalogs and gather the family 'round to decide what you'll plant.

The time required for each variety to mature should be noted on the garden plan and compared with the length of the growing season in your locality. And, of course, don't pick varieties that aren't suited to your locality.

It's a good idea to consult a local seed dealer, the state agricultural college or county agent about planting dates. These vary widely in various parts of the country.

In general, garden crops may be divided into four groups: Those that can be planted before the time of the last killing frost in the spring; those that can be planted about the time of the last killing frost; those that cannot be planted until the danger of frost is past and those that cannot be planted until the ground and the weather are warm.

It is important also to know the average date of the first killing frost of the fall in your community.

EXHAUSTS PATIENCE

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—More than 30 times Federal agents raided the home of Sylvester Gaston and in 16 of the raids illicit liquor was found. Gaston, 40-year-old crippled Negro, escaped prosecution because Federal authorities pitied him.

Gaston troubled internal revenue agents once too often, however, and Federal Judge John Collett sentenced him to two years in prison. While Gaston was in court hearing sentence pronounced, police raided his home again and found more liquor.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

RE-ORGANIZATION OF SIX CIRCLES HELD

Officers of First Presbyterian Church Guild In Charge of Annual Meeting; Plan Installation for April 18.

THE REORGANIZATION of the circles of the First Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon during a meeting of the Women's Guild in the church parlors. Mrs. W. R. King conducted a short general business session, after which each of the circles met for election of officers and the discussion of plans for the year.

Tea was served at the close of the afternoon from a table decorated with yellow and purple appointments. Mrs. King and Mrs. Mina L. Nase poured. Members of the executive board of the guild, who were hostesses for the day, included: Mrs. King, Mrs. J. R. Turner, Mrs. John Angle, Mrs. O. R. Alverson, Mrs. Harvey Lanehart, Mrs. W. H. Gifford, Mrs. D. Osborne Meese, Mrs. Walter Goodenough and Mrs. Forest Domer.

Installation services of the circle officers will be an event of the guild meeting scheduled for April 18. Members of Circle One will be in charge of the program at that time.

Mrs. Domer was elected chairman of Circle Two yesterday afternoon, and she will be assisted by Mrs. George Ingram as vice chairman. Mrs. Samuel Orr is the new treasurer, and Mrs. E. T. Whiteleather has been named secretary. Mrs. John Leistensnider has invited the group to her home, 87 Greenwood avenue, for the next meeting, May 2.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

OUR college students are running true to form by doing important and exciting things at their various college campuses. . . . Robert Kinsey (who was graduated from Wittenberg college in 1938 and is now a second-year student in graduate work at Johns Hopkins university) has received the Vogeler fellowship to continue his work in classical archeology. . . . And along with the special privileges for study accorded the winner of this annual scholarship, is a fund of approximately $700. . . . According to Prof. Elmer G. Suhr (Wittenberg graduate and earlier winner of the fellowship, who now teaches Latin at the Springfield college), this is the best scholarship in the department at the university—so we all certainly can be proud of Bob. . . .

Elaine Downs has been installed as publicity director for her sorority, Alpha Omega—a national education group at Kent State university. . . . And that's not all either, she has been nominated as one of five candidates competing for the honor of being chosen the prettiest girl at the school—this beauty's picture will appear in the campus year book. . . . Elaine, you know, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion A. Downs.

Have you seen Martha Davey since she's been in town for her spring vacation from Harcum Junior college? She's visiting here with her mother, Mrs. John Davey, now, following a brief stay in Bloomfield, N. J. . . . She was stopping at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schuyler there—accompanied by her brother, John, and Steve Schuyler. . . . Incidentally, both young men (who are members of Phi Delta Theta fraternity) will be graduated from the Wharton school of business and finance at the University of Pennsylvania in June.

SOME exciting news from Panama comes in a letter from Mrs. Frank Michael. . . . While in a little shop at Balboa (where she is staying), she had the thrill of seeing movie-actor Cary Grant, who was stopping there for 12 hours during his first trip to the Canal Zone. . . . Mrs. Michael (who was formerly Alice Parkinson) saw the Mauretania pass through the Canal, and she also has the pleasure of lolling in the warm sunshine most all the time—the thermometers are registering between 90 and 93 degrees just now. . . . Alice and her husband are planning to return to the United States sometime in late August.

* * *

Walter W. Willis, accompanied by his sisters, Mrs. A. D. Lynn of Portsmouth and Mrs. C. O. Casteel of Canton, took a very important trip this week. . . . They drove to Leesburg, Ind., to visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Willis, and helped them celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

* * *

YOU can put on your dancing shoes tomorrow night, and go to the Beta Epsilon spring formal at the Grotto hall. . . . George Terry and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing from 9:30 until 1 o'clock, and special arrangements for the affair have been made by Margaret Rizer, Helen Downard, Kay Johnson and Pat Anderson. . . . It promises to be a gay spring dance, so you'd better plan to attend.

* * *

VACATION BOUND: In spite of the fact that spring really seems to be getting established here at long last, some folks are going traveling to warmer climes. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Max Geipel left this week to spend a month in California, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dirlam are taking a six-weeks' motor trip through that other sunshine state—Florida. . . .

* * *

DR. FREDERICK W. GILLIG was in town this week, following the completion of a six-months' post graduate course in opthalmology (eye surgery to most of us!) at Harvard university. . . . And now he's going to New Orleans, La., where he will serve as resident surgeon at Tulane university for the next 18 months. . . . His wife and daughter, Constance, will join the doctor in the southern city after the close of school here in June.

CLASS HOSTESS.

Mrs. Georgia Pulver was hostess yesterday at her home on South Main street for the meeting of the Berean Bible class of the South Main Street Evangelical church. Following the business meeting the afternoon was spent socially. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held May 2 at the church.

Women's Association Has Birthday Luncheon Party

The four seasons were used as a theme in decorating the luncheon table yesterday at the annual birthday party of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church in the church parlors. Shown above with the springtime table are, from left to right, Mrs. B. F. Parr, Mrs. Peter Young and Mrs. V. D. Lersch.

Mrs. R. E. Hutchison, left, and Mrs. F. J. Schuster, are seen admiring this typical summer table, above, with its blooming flowers, bird bath and crystal garden ball.

Mrs. Ida Mack, left, and Miss Helen Hurst, president of the Women's Association, were about to be seated for luncheon at the autumn table above, which had a predominate color scheme of warm brown and orange tones to compliment the centerpiece of vegetables.

The winter table commemorated Christmas with a manger scene and frosted pine trees. Mrs. Fannie Carrier and Mrs. T. J. Patton are seated at this table.

Routine Session Event of Central Methodist Units

Mrs. Albert Baerren was in charge of the worship service yesterday morning during a meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the Central Methodist church in the church parlors at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Wayne Miller presented a chapter from the study book, and luncheon was served at noon by Mrs. R. K. Clark and her committee.

A meeting of the Home society was in session during the afternoon, with Mrs. Ruth Orcutt in charge of devotions. A discussion of the study book was given by Mrs. R. L. Foulke, after which Mrs. Charles Birch and Mrs. E. C. Jenkins sang a duet. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Louis Rahn.

Following business meetings of the Circles, Mrs. C. N. Shultz conducted a business session of the General Aid society, and she also gave the devotional readings. Mrs. Retta Bonar sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. L. A. Ogborn. Selections were sung by a trio, composed of Mrs. Birch, Mrs. Bonar and Mrs. Ogborn. Mrs. Rahn played the piano accompaniment for these numbers. The next regular meeting at the church will be an event of May 2.

Esther Class Conducts All-Day Party at Davis'

Members of the Esther class of the Mayflower Congregational church met yesterday for an all-day covered-dish dinner in honor of those having birthdays during the first four months of the year. Mrs. Imo Davis, Longview avenue, was hostess with Mrs. Cleo Hainer, Mrs. L. H. Edwards, Mrs. Ralph Peat and Mrs. C. A. Cole as associates.

A guest was Mrs. John Marion. The afternoon was spent in sewing and fancy work, and the contests were won by Mrs. Carl Stough, Mrs. J. R. Heilman, Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. Hainer. The next regular meeting will be held April 10 with Mrs. Mark Southward, 42 Howard street.

Association Has Annual Luncheon In Church Parlors

The annual birthday luncheon was an event for members of the Women's Association of the First Congregational church yesterday when nearly 100 women were served in the church basement. Mrs. Fred Tracy was chairman of the menu committe. Mrs. Ethel Channell was in charge of the dining room, and Mrs. Charles Fox was in charge of the program.

At luncheon Miss Helen Hurst, association president, gave a toast to all members of the association over 70 years old, and welcomed all the women who have joined the church in the past year.

Mrs. William Osborn gave an illustrated talk on her recent trip to the Carribbean and Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Hall, sang four numbers. Tables were decorated for the four seasons of the year by Mrs. H. C. McCutchan, Mrs. York Dirlam, Mrs. Pogue, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Edward Loughridge, and Mrs. Henry Sanford. The final meeting of the year is scheduled for May 2.

Adams, 21 East First street. The bride has been employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, while Mr. Nichols is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Rev. Martin W. Wappner, chaplain of the Ohio State Reformatory, was the guest speaker at a meeting of Iota Sigma of W. C. T. U. last evening during a meeting in the pavilion at Johns park. The subject of his talk was "Problems of Delinquency."

A covered-dish dinner was served to members and guests at 6 o'clock, followed by short talks by Rev. Iva Wallick, Rev. O. S. Goerner and Claude M. Hunter. M. S. Casto gave the devotional readings.

The musical portion of the program was presented by Gerald Wallick, who played accordion and saxophone solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss Madeline Kuenzli. Floral pieces which decorated the dinner table were sent to two members of the group, Mrs. E. F. Shupp and Mrs. William Plum, who are ill.

Arrangements for the evening were in charge of Mrs. Grace Rapes and Mrs. William Newbert. The next meeting will be a county institute session in Shelby on April 24.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"MR. BATES?" my father queried when the old real estate man to whom he had telephoned had come to the telephone. "This is Charles Spencer. Yes, thank you; very well, indeed, and in an inquisitive mood. I'd like some information, if you have it. Thank you. That's very nice of you.

"Here are the things I want to know. First, will you tell me what year the old part of this house was built? Did you say 1765? That's what I thought. Do you know the name of the original family that owned it? Carman? Are there any of the descendants of the original clan anywhere around, and would they be apt to have any information about the old house or the people who built it?"

"That is certainly gratifying to me," my father said at last. "Now I am very anxious to get in touch with this Miss Carman, but I cannot leave the farm house just at present. Let me see! Do you suppose she would consent to see my daughter and another lady if they went over to see her this afternoon?"

My father was speaking again after a pause, and we both strained our ears shamelessly to hear what he was saying.

"I am under great obligations to you, Mr. Bates," he said earnestly. "It is very good of you to arrange this interview for me. Shall we say five o'clock? I am sure my daughter, Mrs. Graham, and her friend, Mrs. Underwood, can be there promptly at that time. Good-bye."

He hung up the receiver and swung around, facing us with an inscrutable smile on his lips.

"You are concealing your astonishment very well," he said. "I really should pay a tribute to your poise."

"If we took it, we would be acting under false pretenses," Lillian replied quickly. "I'm simply eaten up with curiosity, and I know Madge must be badly bitten also."

"I am wild to know all about it, Father," I admitted, "but, of course, I don't want to hurry you."

"I do," Lillian said saucily. "I'm afraid I shall apply a corkscrew, Chief, if you don't tell us something pretty soon."

"If I am given an opportunity," my father said smiling, "I may be able to satisfy your curiosity."

With swift movements Lillian crossed to me, perched on the arm of my chair, clapped one hand over my mouth, and pressed the other to her own lips, the while she blinked her eyes saucily at my father.

"You will have a task this afternoon which will tax your diplomacy to the utmost. You are to call upon Miss Annie Carman, of whom I have heard you speak, and try to get from her a copy of the original plan of this house before it was remodeled."

Lillian and I gasped, for Miss Annie Carman was a recluse who was famous for her tempers when disturbed.

"I know, I know," my father said hurriedly. "I told you it would be a hard task. But it must be done. I must find out how those marauders got into the attic."

The daughter recently wrote a biography of her famous mother, and has gained international recognition as a writer and lecturer. Bromfield has written several magazine articles on the younger Curie.

The Bromfield family and Mlle. Curie became friends while the former was living at Senlis, France, and she was a frequent visitor at the Bromfield home.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

UNDER-LEADING AN ACE

NO MORE precarious lead exists than the under-lead of an ace against a suit contract. Because of the risk of finding the king in one of declarer's two hands and a singleton in the other, it is likely to beat your side out of any trick at all in the suit. Furthermore, it may set up an honor at your right, which would be captured if you did not lead the suit. In some extremities and special situations, however, it is worth trying, but only in such spots.

	♠ Q 8 4 ♥ K J 8 ♦ J 10 6 4 ♣ K 10 6
♠ 5 3 ♥ A 10 7 5 ♦ 4 ♣ 7 3 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ 10 7 2 ♥ Q 2 ♦ 9 7 5 3 ♣ 9 8 5 4
	♠ A K J 9 6 ♥ 9 6 3 ♦ K Q ♣ A Q J

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	2 NT	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♠

If West had made an orthodox lead of his heart suit here, the A, declarer would have made his contract with ease, plus an overtrick if he played his K in case West repeated the suit. But West was not orthodox. He reckoned that the contract would be easy for the declarer unless something special happened, that an overtrick seemed likely, as his partner could hardly have anything worthwhile.

Then he reasoned that North almost surely had the heart K, from his No Trump bid. He might not have the Q, which was about all East could hold. When he led his heart 4, to make the reading difficult for declarer, the latter decided East had the A, probably singleton. So he played the J from dummy. The Q took the trick, the 2 was returned to West's A, a third heart was led and East ruffed it. He returned a diamond and that gave the side the setting trick.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 6.

A particularly lively and inspiring day is the augury based on very interesting planetary configurations. An element of the unique, surprising and dramatic is shown, possibly with the private, social, artistic or even spiritual life involved. There is sign of group action in social, educational or humanitarian work, with elderly feminine influence potent.

Those whose birthday it is have an outlook for a very romantic, novel and thrilling year, in connection with social, educational or humanitarian groups, or in creative work--writing fiction, plays or musical compositions. Feminine influence is strong.

A child born on this day may have much versatility and original talent, possibly in musical composition, modernistic art forms or in unique fictional or dramatic creation. It may be energetic as well as brilliant and practical in promoting its alluring career.

SPEED HEALING

Experiment on New Substance to Heal War Wounds.

LONDON — (U.P.) — A substance which may enable war wounds to heal more quickly is the subject of experiments being conducted at the Strangeways Research Laboratory, Cambridge.

It is called epicutan, and its discoverer, Dr. Albert Fisher, is director of the Carlsberg Biological Institute of Copenhagen.

For some years there has been knowledge of a growth promoting substance obtainable from 10-day-old chick embryo. Its instability and the technical difficulties in extracting it have been obstacles to its use in surgery, but it would seem that Dr. Fisher has discovered a means of producing the substance as a clean, stable powder which can be absorbed in kaolin.

It is suggested that the use of this has shown cases where wounds have healed in one-third of the usual time. It may to some extent replace skin-grafting.

INDIANS THRIVE

WOLF POINT, Mont.— (U.P.) — Contrary to popular opinion, the Indian is not a vanishing race—at least as far as the Fort Peck reservation is concerned. Twenty years ago the population of the northeastern Montana reservation was less than 2,200. Today 2,882 Indians are residents and 400 others who belong there are temporarily at other agencies.

CHAPTER VIII

"Yeah—I know how it is. But look, this ain't none of my business, and I suppose I should keep my trap shut. But, well, you're a kinda nice kid, see, an' I'd hate to see you get it in the neck. An' you will if you go to work for the Blanchard or any other department store. They work their help for long hours at small pay, an' I mean they work, see? An' they dock you for this and that so you never get what you're supposed to be earning; if you make one mistake they fire you—and if you don't make a mistake they still find an excuse for letting you go because all they're interested in is building up a personnel they can call in whenever necessary. Nope, a job in the department stores gets you nothing but a rotten living, an' you don't advance, you don't get anything. If I was you I wouldn't take the job."

Elaine found herself smiling at him. "Am I supposed to starve to death?"

He heaved a sigh as he eased the cab to a stop beside the curb. "That's the whole trouble with this country," he told her, snapping the flag down on the meter. "The big shots can make you slave like that 'cause you need the dough. Well—some day—that'll be sixty cents, lady."

• • •

Elaine paid him and climbed out of the cab. It wasn't until after he had driven away that she realized she had met one of New York's legendary taxicab drivers. Smiling, she faced the house in which she was to live.

It was an old-fashioned, three-story brownstone house with a high stoop and iron-grilled door; quite similar to other houses that lined both sides of the street. She ran quickly up the steps and pressed the doorbell. The door was opened by a woman who, had she been dressed in men's clothes, would have been an exact image of Dr. Stuart.

"You must be Elaine," Jane said with a grin, stepping back from the door. "I would have met you at the station but the landlord and his wife decided to catch an early show at the Capitol and I had to mind their baby."

Elaine smiled at the expression of long and patient suffering that drifted across Jane's face as she mentioned the landlord's baby. "I took a cab so you really didn't have to meet me."

As she finished speaking an anguished wail came from the end of the hall and Jane clapped a hand to her forehead. "The little imp, he's been screaming for an hour!"

"Perhaps he's hungry," Elaine suggested, trying to be helpful. She followed Jane down the long hall towards the door from behind which came the screams. "Babies always cry when they're hungry, you know."

"Hungry?" Jane shook her head as though to imply such a thing was impossible. "I gave him a bottle of milk fifteen minutes ago. What he needs is a good paddling, but I'm afraid that if I did spank him I'd break him in two!"

She flung open the door and bowed deeply. "Your home, Miss Warburton!"

Elaine stepped into the apartment to be greeted by a very determined wailing which came from a baby who lay kicking in his little white crib. With a sympathetic cry she rushed across the room and picked him up, smiling at his plump, rosy-cheeked loveliness. Cuddling him close, she carried him about the room crooning softly. After a few moments the baby ceased his wailing and threw his arms about her neck, gurgling with sudden happiness.

"There," she said with a smile, placing him back into the crib and drawing the comforter over him, "all he needed was a little petting."

Jane was almost popeyed. "How in the world did you know that?"

"I've always liked babies, Jane," Elaine told her simply. "Back in Lynville I used to spend hours taking care of them. After a while I learned that if you petted them a little at the right time they'd behave."

While she was talking, Elaine had been looking about the place which was now to be her home. Her roving eyes fell upon an easel and a half-finished painting of a cathedral, and she looked with interest at Jane. "I didn't know you were an artist."

Jane laughed dryly. "I'm not. But the people who buy my stuff haven't found that out yet."

Elaine smiled at this sally but decided that Jane was simply being modest. A person with but half an eye for pictures could tell that Jane's work was good. Deciding, however, that Jane neither expected nor desired further comments on the painting, she lapsed into silence and resumed her inspection of the apartment.

• • •

It was really much nicer than she had expected to find for such a low rental. The living room, shaped in a sort of rectangle, was large and well-furnished, with two soft couches, five comfortable looking easy chairs strewn about on the thick, brightly-colored rug which ran the length of the room. Near the window there stood a small piano which looked as though it had been through the wars, but Elaine was pleased with it nevertheless for it implied that Jane shared her love for music. At either side of the room stood an old-fashioned, well-filled bookcase, while at irregular intervals along the gray-papered walls hung pictures the like of which she had never seen. Elaine raised a hand to hide her smile. Apparently these pictures were Jane's pride and joy, the type which is never sold but carefully treasured against that day when a person becomes not just a mere painter but an immortal artist.

She turned with a satisfied smile to Jane who had stood silently beside her while she inspected the room. "I never expected to find a place as nice as this," she told her frankly. "It's swell!"

"You haven't seen anything yet," Jane declared, leading her into the bedroom. "How do you like this?"

Elaine walked in behind her, hoping that it would not prove a disappointment after the living-room. It wasn't, for it too was large and well-furnished, with two bureaus, twin beds and a rug almost an exact replica of the one on the living-room floor. In here, too, were hung more of Jane's work and Elaine found herself looking with awe at the slight, homely girl. Jane apparently was capable of doing an unbelievable amount of work, choosing her subjects with the happy abandon of a true artist.

A little clock in the living-room slowly chimed twelve and as Elaine opened her bags, which had been delivered the day before her arrival, she was amazed at how swiftly the time had slipped by. Remembering that she had decided to visit both Monticelli and Clara's father that very afternoon, she hastily began to unpack her bags. But Jane, when told of her plans, would have none of that.

"You can pack them any time," she said crisply, "and if you're going to run around all afternoon the best thing for you right now is a good meal."

"Correct," Elaine exclaimed, suddenly becoming aware that she was hungry. She closed her bags with a sheepish grin. "Goodness, you'd think I was leaving New York in a week, the way I'm rushing."

Jane laughed as they returned to the living-room. "You go on ahead into the kitchen," she directed, paused beside the crib, "I'll put his nibs in the bedroom."

• • •

Elaine walked down the little hallway Jane had indicated and opened the kitchen door. An alarmed gasp came from her lips as she entered the room to find a coatless, unshaven man sitting nonchalantly at the table spreading cream cheese and jelly over two chunks of bread. She halted nervously, wondering who he was, wondering, too, if he had any right to be in the kitchen.

He smiled amiably, not bothering to rise. "Tis the colleen Jane has been expectin'," he said in a rich Irish brogue. "Me name is Jack O'Malley, and you, if I'm not guessin' wrong, are Elaine Warburton. Would you be carin' to eat?"

Elaine looked at him, still hesitant. His face was frank and honest and he did not know who she was, but still Jane hadn't told her he was there. She moved slowly to the table. "I did come in for something to eat," she confessed. "Does Jane know you're here?"

"She does not." He pointed a stubby finger at the window that opened on a fire escape. "Hungry I was, and me wallot is empty. So, puttin' two and two together as is but right I came down here. I live upstairs an' bein' an officer of the law I find it easy to use the fire escape." He cut Elaine two slices of bread and smeared cream cheese and jelly over them. "Not very fancy," he said, offering her the sandwich, "but it's the food that counts, not the fancy fixin's."

Elaine didn't know whether to accept the sandwich or call Jane. But there was something about his carefree manner which somehow made her believe him and after but another moment's hesitation she took the sandwich. As it turned out, there had been no need for her to call Jane, for that young lady, hearing voices in the kitchen, had come to investigate.

"Jack O'Malley!" she cried, eyes blazing as she saw him sitting at the table. "How dare you come uninvited into my house?"

"Whist!" he said, shaking his head dolefully. "That is a cruel way you have of speakin' to your boy-friend."

"I'm going to nail that window down," Jane said, turning to Elaine. 'Every time he goes broke he comes in here and chisels whatever food he finds in the icebox. You'd think a full-grown man would feel ashamed to steal from a woman."

• • •

Elaine glanced at Jack who sat unruffled during this tirade and then turned to placate Jane. "He—he doesn't have any money," she told her, "and maybe he is hungry. I'm sure there's enough food for all of us."

Jane laughed scornfully. "As a policeman he earns sixty dollars a week. If he didn't spend that gambling he'd be saving money instead of being always broke."

All the while she had been talking Jack had been busily engaged in making sandwiches. He rose as she finished speaking and stuffed two of the sandwiches into his pocket.

"A brick does not have to be thrown at me," he rumbled. "I can take a hint. I will be leavin' you." He bowed formally to them both. "I offer my thanks to you," he said to Elaine, "and as for you, Miss Stuart, you'll never be seein' me again."

Elaine could scarcely suppress a giggle as he solemnly climbed out of the window and began to make his way up the fire escape steps.

Jane rushed over to the window. "Jack, would you have time to take Elaine over to her music teacher's house?"

Elaine had expected he would ignore Jane completely and was surprised when he came back down the steps. "I'll be goin' on duty in an hour," he told her.

"It's right near here," Jane urged. "Elaine's in a hurry and I don't want her to waste time getting lost."

"I'll be puttin' on me uniform then, seein' how it's the gracious collen who wants the favor," Jack said, a twinkle gleaming in his eyes. He began climbing back up the fire escape. "I'll be ready in fifteen minutes."

"Oh, Jane, perhaps you shouldn't have bothered him," Elaine said after he had gone. "I'm sure I could find Monticelli's studio all right."

"You'd get lost," Jane declared knowingly. She moved busily about the kitchen putting things in order. "And besides, Jack really doesn't mind. He'd give a person the shirt off his back if any one needed it."

Thacher Retires From Primary Race With Bricker

REPUBLICANS CONCENTRATE ON NEFFNER

Marker Quits Democratic Contest, Leaving Seven Candidates.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Withdrawal of Addison Q. Thatcher as Gov. John W. Bricker's only opponent for the Republican gubernatorial nomination left the party's state central committee free today to concentrate on its unprecedented "write-in" campaign to nominate George M. Neffner for secretary of state.

Neffner is the only Republican incumbent in state office facing opposition in the May primary. He succeeded the late Earl Griffith as the state organization's choice for the position too late to qualify for a place on the ballot. He is opposed by Edward J. Hummell of Cincinnati.

The only other state office for which there remains a Republican primary contest is that occupied by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, a Democrat. Seven Republicans are seeking the auditor nomination and none has been endorsed by the state committee.

Seven Remain.

The field seeking the Democratic nomination for governor was reduced to seven by the last-minute withdrawal of James R. Marker of Columbus, former state highway director.

Marker said he hoped the nominee would be one who could prevent "factional strife" and be entitled to the support of all Democrats because of his "party regularity."

Four Democrats seeking the gubernatorial nomination spoke at a rally in Jackson last night. On the program were Davey, White, Harold G. Mosier of Cleveland and William J. Kennedy of Cleveland.

Davey promised to increase Ohio old age pensions to a maximum of $40 and accused Bricker of neglecting the highways and causing $10,000,000 damage.

Fears Defeat.

Kennedy feared the Democrats might not be able to win the November election "with our state ticket headed either by a demonstrated loser or a candidate whose political thinking is as hard and fossilized and cold and old as the rock-bound coast of Alaska."

Mosier promised legislation to outlaw in Ohio "the Communist party or any other party dominated by a foreign government."

John McSweeney of Wooster, seeking the U. S. senator nomination, asserted the re-election of President Roosevelt was "our only hope of keeping out of war."

In Cleveland, guests at the 100th anniversary banquet of the Republican Tippecanoe club heard C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago describe the Republican party as "the only agency available to save this nation and guarantee that we stay at peace with the world." Brooks is a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in Illinois.

Committee Takes Up City's Traffic Problem Tonight

Mansfield's first organized efforts to solve the city's traffic ills will be taken under consideration tonight when a citizens' committee, headed by Lewis Hartman, meets at the courthouse to discuss the problem.

The session scheduled for 8 p. m. will be held in the common pleas courtroom at which time the 55 members of the group will receive committee assignments. Sub-committee chairmen were named earlier this week by Hartman.

Principal speakers at tonight's meeting will be Mayor William J. Locke, who is expected to outline his views in connection with sweeping revisions of traffic regulations to meet present day traffic needs, and Patrolman Frend C. Boals, the police department's safety supervisor, who recently returned from Northwestern university traffic institute at Evanston, Ill., where he attended a three weeks course in traffic engineering.

Hartman said a general discussion on Mansfield's traffic problems will be conducted by the group.

Up and Down THE STREET

County Agent George B. Ganyard's office at the courthouse had its own "movies" today. The federal soil conservation service set up an exhibit for farmers, showing the effects of soil erosion and methods of erosion-prevention. Automatically operated, the exhibit flashed color pictures on a large frame while another display nearby includes stationary photographs in black and white.

Police are going to learn a thing or two about airplanes. Not that any of them are anxious to fly, but they'll probably be inspecting model ships they see powered with a small gasoline motor. Someone tossed a stone through a show window at the Shaw Drug store, 305 Marion avenue, and stole such a motor valued at $7 and officers are on the trail of the thief.

When "Skippy," the county jail mascot, gets into trouble he is particular about who rescues him. He fell into the creek south of the jail this morning, and because "Skippy" is a small dog and there is a high retaining wall along the stream, he was unable to get out. Hearing his wails, several persons in the vicinity tried to rescue him, but he growled and refused to be helped. Finally Goldie Matuch, the jail cook and a special friend of "Skippy," was called. Soaked and covered with mud, she climbed over the wall a few minutes later with the jubilant "Skippy" in her arms.

It looked for a while like Friday might lose, but he turned the trick recently against the Orrville Moose club when he came through with a nifty 711.

LIFTS TAX LEVY

Judge Rules Madison Farm Not in Conservancy District.

Correcting an error in the survey for the Mansfield Conservancy district when it was set up in 1927, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today had ruled out the conservancy tax assessments on a 135-acre farm in Madison township.

The farm, owned by F. F. Finney and B. J. Kinley, has never legally been in the district, although it was included in the original survey and taxes were assessed against it.

Motion to free the owners from the levy was filed in common pleas court by Atty. C. H. Workman, representing the conservancy board. The board asked for a correction of the error.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said his records showed there had been no actual conservancy levy payments made on the property although it was listed as taxable on his books. The farm is in the southwest part of the township.

BIBLE QUOTER OUT OF ORDER

Judge Rules Sidewalk Orator Was 2,000 Years Late.

SALT LAKE CITY—A man who said he was an ordained minister quoted Bible passages in defending himself against a charge of blocking pedestrian traffic by attracting a crowd to his street corner preaching.

Then he pleaded, quoting Jeremiah 26:14:

"But as for me, behold, I am in your hand; do with me as is good and right in your eyes."

Judge Albert H. Ellett imposed a $10 fine, but suspended it with the comment:

"The Bible undoubtedly was the proper law for the Israelites 2,000 years ago, but I don't believe it applies in this case."

CITY BUS ROUTES REVISED TO AVOID DOWNTOWN CONGESTION

Mansfield Rapid Transit company buses today were operating from a transfer point at Third and Main streets over revised routes through the business district.

The change was effected this morning at the request of Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to relieve traffic congestion at Main and Fourth streets during the improvements being made at the intersection.

Crafton said the new safety zones were marked at Main and Third streets by the street department last night and would probably remain in effect until the resurfacing of West Fourth street was completed sometime this summer.

The revised schedule of routing was announced today by G. F. Van Tilburg, superintendent of the company, who said buses will assume the same positions at the new transfer point that they had at Main and Fourth streets with the exception of the Hedges coach which will stop on the south side of Third street instead of the north side.

The bus routings have been changed as follows:

Bus from Park avenue west will go north on Diamond to Third, west on Third to Mulberry, north on Mulberry to Fourth and then west.

Bus from West Fourth street will go east on Fourth to Mulberry, south on Mulberry to Third, east on Third to Main.

Bus from Fairground will go east on Fifth to Diamond, to Third to Main, make left turn and stop on Main for connections.

Bus from Steel Mill will go south on Main to Sixth to Diamond to Third to Main.

Bus from Mansfield Tire will go west on Fourth to Diamond to Third to Main.

Bus from Hedges will go north on Main to Third to Diamond to Sixth to Mulberry.

Bus from South Main will go north on Main to Third to Diamond to Sixth to Main.

Bus from Glessner will go north on Mulberry to Third to Diamond to Fourth.

HALF-MILLION FUND INCREASE BEING SOUGHT

Army Bill Passed Yesterday Provides $784,999,094 Appropriation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — House economy advocates were rolling up their sleeves today for one of the toughest bouts of the session—a battle to prevent a $500,000,000 increase in the proposed $985,000,000 WPA fund.

Relief moved to the top of the card after the House yesterday passed the $784,999,094 army bill, the last of the session's 11 regular appropriation bills. As approved by the House, these measures provide for total expenditures of $6,120,123,932.

Thus far, the House has managed to hold spending below President Roosevelt's budget estimates, with a single exception. It jolted the economy program only on the labor department-federal security bill, tacking on about $67,000,000 primarily for the CCC and the National Youth Administration.

On the relief question, the move for heavier spending found support in both House and Senate.

No sooner had a House appropriations subcommittee started hearings on the WPA estimates yesterday than Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) launched an effort to add $150,000,000 to the current year's relief fund of $1,477,000,000.

Pepper asserted the increase was needed immediately to prevent "real suffering" before June 30—when next year's relief money becomes available.

The house committee heard Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA chief, outline the present relief situation and explain how the $985,000,000—the amount WPA would get under President Roosevelt's tentative estimate of $1,125,000,000—would be used.

Harrington testified behind closed doors, but afterward some committee members said the $985,000,000 would carry an average of 1,600,000 persons on WPA rolls for the year starting July 1, a reduction of approximately 500,000 from the rolls this month.

It is to offset large-scale reductions that the boost-relief-funds movement has started. Legislators from urban districts said the movement had a good chance of getting its objective.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Look This Way.

There was always a night life on Broadway, but its denizens were never as familiar to the nation's public as comic strip characters, presidential candidates or Hollywood stars until the rise of the night club cameraman. These are the boys who photograph Brenda at midnight, snap Jack Astor with his garters off, catch Barbara Hutton with her newest beau, and imprison John Barrymore for the breakfast papers. They are the ingenious and frequently screwball historians of an era, who stop time in its flight and rush the results down to the news offices to be developed.

* * *

Sometimes they get slugged, but not often. Most celebrities are delighted to be photographed, even if sometimes they seem to be yawning in the camera's face. Most debutantes are flattered when a lens is trained on them. Some famous folk do funny things when a camera comes around.

Wayne Morris was at the Algonquin one night drinking an inoffensive scotch and soda. He genially granted the photographer permission to take a picture, but begged the lens lad to wait a moment. Wonderingly, the photog waited—until the drink was substituted by a glass of milk.

Nelson Eddy is a photographer's favorite. When the camera is trained on him he takes off his glasses. "Wait a minute," he cautions, "I'm supposed to be a glamor boy."

Margaret Lindsay is always affable to cameramen, and lets them pose her any way they like. Tyrone Power and Annabella are popular for the same reason. The lads mutter dark sayings at the mention of Katharine Hepburn, who feels the same way about them.

* * *

All the boys who prowl the photogenic night realm learn tact and tricks. Dick Brugiere, the handsome San Francisco youth who's domain is the St. Regis Iridium room, is frequently faced with the problem of snapping a debutante who doesn't know how to pose, and is a sure thing to come out in the Sunday rotogravure looking like Broadway Rose. Dick just says, "Now, look at the camera. Wet your lips. Say, 'Boo!'"

It always works. The deb comes out with a cute pouting expression, and everyone wonders what she was saying when that photographer took her picture without her even knowing it.

* * *

Another photographer, necessarily anonymous, snapped a picture of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., early one morning in a night club, and young Roosevelt, in a resentful mood, tried to grab the camera. The photog escaped, and although his irate subject searched high and low in the night club and out on the street, he never found him.

What F. D. R., jr., doesn't know is this: the cameraman dashed out of the club, got into a police radio car that was standing outside, put on a friendly cop's coat and hat, and sat calmly behind the wheel of the car until the storm had passed.

* * *

Sometimes photographers just never know what hit them. Dick Brugiere was photographing a socially prominent couple one night when an irate Englishman, who was nowhere within camera range, rushed over, furiously tried to break the camera, and tore all the buttons off Dick's dinner jacket. There was nothing for the photographer to do but flatten him with a right hook to the jaw.

Later, the fellow tried to sneak off without paying his check.

* * *

Chic Farmer, who plies his camera at the Stork club, is to the debutante what Gus Edwards was to the child star. A discoverer of the photogenic in the smart set, Chic is the power behind the rapid rise of Brenda Frazier. He was the first to take her picture in public, and it was his skillful bulb-pressing in front of Brenda's lovely features that shot her to page one prominence. He was the discoverer of Mary Steele, and is responsible for the current success of Josephine Johnson in the debutante sweepstakes.

* * *

Ed Ozern is the cameraman responsible for the picture of Brenda Frazier that hit the nation's feature pages only recently—the one showing her making a terrible face. Ed ran into her one night at the Pierre and asked her to pose. "But why?" asked Brenda. "Haven't they enough pictures of me?"

Jokingly, Ed told her that his assignment was to snap her making a face. And on the spur of the moment, never dreaming he'd imprison the pose for posterity, Brenda made a face that developed into one of the photographic sensations of the season. The picture ran in hundreds of newspapers from coast to coast, and Brenda, who has a sense of humor, thinks it was cute of Ed to "put one over" on her.

* * *

Half the battle in becoming a pet photographer to the dancing-and-dining glamor girls is knowing the proper angle at which to snap the proper people. To "sell" the pictures to the art editor, and to maintain good will among the beauties, the cameramen keep little memoranda on How to Pose Them. Brenda looks her prettiest when snapped at three-quarter profile on the left side of her face. Eleanor "Cookie" Young is best at full-face, as is Gloria Baker Topping. Esme O'Brien looks best at three-quarter left profile, and Josephine Johnson is perfect shot straight into the camera.

And with Jimmy Durante, the Dream Prince, the boys have found it doesn't make a bit of difference.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—After my exposure of the quaint idea that the launching of a new movie is an occasion of state and ceremony (I refer to last week's DeMillerdrama about the first day of "North West Mounted Police") an antidote was prescribed.

I found mine on the set of a new little epic called "Dead Man's Isle," where the shooting proceeded as if it were a pleasure for all concerned—just as it used to be in the days of screen silence, before Hollywood became big business and the banks took over.

The first startling item on the set was laughter. The set itself, and the story, were grim enough. Rochelle Hudson is a glamour bird in an electrified cage, or stockade, maintained by mild little Peter Lorre on a obscure Pacific island where he exploits paroled convicts to work his diamond mine. The set was the rear of Peter's house, and part of the electrified wire fence Robert Wilcox, the hero, was talking through the fence, first to the friendly cook (George E. Stone) and then to Rochelle. Wilcox was dirtier, with smudge and glycerin perspiration, than he used to be as a mucker on Boulder Dam—and that, he said, was dirty.

* * *

But that part of it was all play-acting, quickly done and canned. Between takes (about an average of two minutes apart) everybody found something to laugh about—and that included the director, a chap named Charles Barton, who came up the hard way from propping (1923) through assistant direction to direction (1934).

Barton is unique. Although he stands only five feet two inches, he still does his own sounding off for "Quiet," a task which many taller men leave to their assistants—and this is not to say Barton has no assistant. When a director persistently does his own "Quiet" call he is defying convention and ceremony. DeMille occasionally does, but generally this great work is left to subordinates, while the master concentrates on Art.

Barton's other favorite expression is "Cut—print it!" When Wilcox mentioned they had finished 26 scenes before lunch, I was incredulous but the script clerk and Barton verified the phenomenon.

"Not important scenes," said Barton. "Just connecting shots. No reason to spend time on them."

* * *

Well, it doesn't prove anything. There's no moral to point. It doesn't mean "Dead Man's Isle" is going to be a better picture than "North West Mounted Police." The chances are it won't be nearly as good a picture—after all. DeMille spends a lot of money on his movies, and "Dead Man's Isle" has a 14-day shooting schedule, and DeMille in that time will be just getting up steam for the long pull ahead.
